200,000 Maritime Workers May Halt Work At Midnight

Union President Predicts Strike After Being "Invited Out" Of Conference With Shipowners

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Joseph Curran, president of the C. I. O. National Maritime Union, said tonight he and his delegation had been "invited out" of a conference with shipowners and predicted his union would stop work at midnight tomorrow.

Curran termed the threatened work stoppage a "lockout."

The N. M. U. head told reporters at headquarters of the American Merchant Marine Institute, where a conference had been ended between the N. M. U. and employers:

"We were 'invited out' of the meeting by the operators and ship-owners. They refused to discuss any proposals made by the union. They rejected all proposals—even proposals to carry out what is already part of an agreement—to discuss wages in a wage review.

"As the matter stand now, as of June 15 there is no contract."

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—One of the five CIO unions involved in the threatened walkout Monday of 200,000 maritime workers indicated today it would not strike immediately, a development expected to have a significant effect on week-end round-the-clock meetings here between the unions and representatives of 39 shipping companies.

The department of labor in Washington made public a telegram to Secretary Schwellenbach from S. F. Hogan, president of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association.

Hogan told the secretary of labor he had instructed his union's negotiating committees to "refrain from any strike action until further notice" because an agreement had been reached on the Pacific coast to extend for one year the union's contract with ship owners there.

The union president then added that his group would confer with Atlantic and gulf coast shipping operators in New York on Monday.

Contracts of the five unions expire midnight Sunday and their spokesmen had declared that all of the CIO affiliates had agreed to walk out together unless a settlement was reached with each union.

CIO President Philip Murray previously had said in Washington that "in all likelihood" the members would walk out on Monday.

The meetings here were arranged by Federal Conciliator William Margolis. At San Francisco west coast ship owners and union leaders also were conferring.

Hogan was scheduled to come to

TALLULAH BANK TELLER DROWNS IN BEAR LAKE

Arthur G. Bray Meets Death When Motorboat Hits Stump, Overturns

POLICE DRAG FOR BODY; COMPANION SAVES SELF

TALLULAH, June 14.—(Special)—Arthur G. Bray, 30-year-old teller at the Tallulah Bank was drowned about 7:00 p. m. tonight in Bear Lake, 4 miles west of Tallulah, when a motorboat in which he and a companion were returning from a fishing trip rammed into a stump and overturned.

Police Chief H. C. Massey of Tallulah said that search parties were still dragging the lake at 11:30 p. m. but had not yet recovered the body. The American Legion emergency truck, summoned from Monroe, was aiding local authorities in the search, chief Massey said.

Bray's companion, Robert Wiley Gandy, swam to safety and later told chief Massey that "I did everything I could to save him."

Witnesses to the accident were quoted as saying that they believed the boat had struck a submerged log, throwing the two occupants into the water when it capsized.

Bray and Gandy were returning from a fishing expedition on the lake at the time of the accident.

Chief Massey said that he was told that Bray was unable to swim, and expressed the opinion that "he must have gone right down."

Shocked and broken by the death of Bray, a life long friend and a former school mate, Gandy was unable to provide complete details of the episode.

Bray was a teller at the Tallulah bank, a post which he has held since the time of his graduation from high school. He served as a captain in the army air forces for about three years, and returned to Tallulah and his position with the bank on his discharge.

The two men were well known as stars of the Tallulah High School football team, Louisiana Class B champions in 1934, on which both played as ends.

Bray is survived by his wife, Dot Justice Bray, two children, one of whom was born only four days ago; his mother, Mrs. A. G. Bray; 3 brothers, William and Shields Bray of Tallulah, and Nat Bray, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

WRITER'S BODY SENT TO MONROE FOR BURIAL

The body of Raymond Hayton, 26-year-old Monroe fiction writer who was found shot to death in his room in New York City last Tuesday, will arrive here this morning, but so far funeral arrangements have not been completed. Mulhearn Funeral Home has charge of arrangements.

Hayton, who resided with a sister, Mrs. Cecil Hill, at 203 Plum street here, was found dead in a Manhattan room about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday by a maid. New York City police, who investigated the case, reported Hayton had been shot once through the temple and that a pistol was found under his body. Police at New York were quoted as saying the young man had apparently taken his own life.

A graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, class of 1939, Georg Hayton served in the army during World War II, and had written fiction stories since his high school days for western and adventure magazines.

He went to New York last March in order to remain in close contact with editors of magazines for which he was writing.

The writer is survived by his father, Raymond R. Hayton, Sr., his sister, Mrs. Hill; and a brother, Sergeant Richard Hayton, stationed in Tampa, Fla.

ST. LOUIS LIMPS UNDER BUS STRIKE

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—(AP)—City officials conferred late today with company and union chieftains in an attempt to end a strike that has paralyzed public transportation in St. Louis since early yesterday.

Both the company and union notified Mayor Aloys P. Kaufman at the start of the conference that they had nothing new to offer and were standing firm in their original positions in a wage arbitration dispute that led to the walkout.

Meanwhile yesterday's logjam of automobile traffic—described by police as the greatest in the history of this metropolitan area of more than 1,000,000 population—was eased considerably by the usual Saturday afternoon holiday for many workers and share-the-ride programs organized by many businesses.

It appeared that the only hope of an early settlement in the strike of 3,500 streetcar and bus operators of the St. Louis public service company lay in a proposal drafted by the U. S. conciliation service for presentation at the meeting, the second called by Mayor Kaufmann. Details of the plan were not made public.

Financial losses "running into the millions" unless the transportation tie-up is ended promptly were predicted by George C. Smith, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

Union Parish Field Gets 3rd Producer

Oil Spouts High In Drill Stem Test Of King-McCalam Well

Oil shot high through the derrick, "like a gusher," for 10 minutes, witnesses said, during a drill stem test that assured the new Ora field in Union parish of its third producer in King & McCalam's Neva Norris No. 1. It is a mile south and a quarter-mile west of the Sellars-Ewing-Primos discovery well and the adjacent Feazel-Neely-Roberts-Dykes No. 1, the second apparent successful operation.

The drill stem test was made between 4 and 5 o'clock Friday evening but the result was not reported here until Saturday morning. A ten-foot core was taken at 2,165-75 feet. The first, or upper, foot was hard sand, with no showing, the next two feet were of gas sand, while the bottom seven feet were of "rich oil sand." Within ten minutes, said G. T. (Pat) Hudson, an independent operator who was on the scene, 1,200 feet of clean pipeline oil entered the hole through a 3/8-inch choke and blew out in the "gusher-like" jet.

It was expected the well would be completed and brought in about the middle of this week. The Nacatoch sand, the producing formation of the Ora field, is three or four feet higher at this point than in the Sellars and

PLAYGROUNDS IN CITY WILL OPEN

Recreation Department Announces Plans For Summer Season

The Monroe Recreation department will open playgrounds Monday at the following schools: Sherrouse, Georgia Tucker, Lida Benton, and Barkdull Faulk. Mrs. Pohlman, Miss Virginia Butler, Miss Patricia Livingston, and Bob Latham will be incharge of the playgrounds, and each will have an assistant.

Mrs. Pohlman is a Girl Scout leader here; Miss Butler is attending L. S. U; Miss Livingston graduated from L. S. U. last year, while Mr. Latham, ordained as a minister in 1946, is still in college.

Playgrounds will open at 8:30 a. m., and will close at noon. Parents are asked to send their children to the playground nearest their homes.

Handicraft, Indian bead work, finger-painting, shell craft, coloring, painting and etching as well as the playing of various games suited to different age groups will comprise daily programs. Tennis instruction will be given at Barkdull Faulk in the morning. Softball competition will hold the spotlight for boys between the various playgrounds.

The Recreation Center, located at 113 1/2 Catalpa street, will be open every day for young and old. We would like to impress upon the public that the center is open for adults as well as children. The adults are urged to have their socials, spend their leisure time, drink soft drinks and eat candy to the soft music of the juke box.

Mrs. J. W. Myers is in charge of the social recreation at the "Rec" and she would be glad to have suggestions from the outside as to what they desire. The softball and baseball leagues are underway with seven leagues in operation, 43 teams and 645 boys and girls playing. Sherrouse, Neville, and Barkdull Faulk diamonds have lights and most games are played under the lights every day except Sunday.

JUDGE DECLARES MISTRIAL IN E-TEX POISONING CASE

NACOGDOCHES, Texas, June 14.—(Special)—The sensational case against petite Dorothy Stokes, charged with the buttermilk poisoning of her sister-in-law last March 4, ended in a mistrial tonight when a county district court jury reported that it was unable to reach a verdict.

After deliberating for 28 hours and 25 minutes, the jury officially notified Judge H. T. Brown at 7:35 p.m. they were deadlocked 8 to 4 and agreement was impossible. Declaring it a mistrial, the judge dismissed the jury.

Learning of the jury's report, Mrs. Stokes dispassionately told reporters: "I suppose I'll have to go through the whole thing all over again.

"I don't mind, though," said the 23-year-old woman who had been described as a cold-blooded killer and a vicitim of neighborhood gossip. "I still say I'm not guilty."

District Attorney Ward Burke had no comment on when the case would be reset for trial.

The jury had been out since 3:10 p. m. Friday, and had twice before

Jes' Ramblin'

All hail Pater Familias on this Father's day! He may not be as essential as mother in the domestic affairs of life but he has just the same a role that none other quite fills. In the matter of footing the family budget he does a superb job but that is only a part of his duty. He guides, or is expected to guide, the changing policies of the family and to see that the best interests of mother and the kiddies are conserved. Not all fathers, unfortunately, are built that way but at the same time there are hordes of them who sacrifice to the bottom dollar to ensure happiness around the family fireside. His supposedly good judgment is the guide post to steer the family fortunes through Scylla and Charybdis. Thus it appears that it is quite proper that the third Sunday in June be designated as "Father's Day." Today presents from Mother, Daughter and Junior will be bestowed. These may be in the form of some of those modern and somewhat gaudy neckties, or shirts, jewelry, shaving outfits, toiletries and luggage—if he travels widely. All these, with an expression of sincere affection, will make father happy not only today but throughout the next twelve months.

"Dear Jes' Ramblin:' There is a program in operation in Monroe that very few people know about.

"The Monroe Recreation department has 45 teams with 675 boys and girls playing. It is estimated that at least 200 spectators see the games. The playgrounds start Monday and with it a playground softball league. The Pee-Wee League starts next week which will take care of 60 more players and four teams."

We observe that J. Ed Howe, who was at one time telegraph editor of a Monroe morning paper that is not now published, and who now resides in Shreveport, broke into type on page one of the "Journal" in that city in defense of the now much attacked squirrels on the Caddo parish courthouse lawn. It seems that Shreveport people are deeply troubled. First they fought the starlings, which assembled in great flocks around the courthouse, and now the public places blame for the destruction of shrubs and plants on the innocent little rodents. Looks like its taking a degree of spite out on the defenseless. We in Monroe are found of the few squirrels we possess and their antics prove a delight to the kiddies.

With the rapid increase of automobiles on the streets of Monroe it appears that those who are urging the widening of North Second and North Third streets are hitting on something of vital importance. It would seem that all automobile drivers hereabouts are deeply concerned and the improvement appears to be something that should excite more than passing interest. Our DeSiard street prevents an ever-increasing

EXPLOSION KILLS 4 ON PRIVATE YACHT

MONTREAL, June 14. — (AP) — Two women and two children were killed today in the explosion here of a private yacht on which they were spending a holiday.

The yacht, owned by Alexis Nihon, president of a Montreal hardware company, burned after an explosion that occurred as it was passing through a canal lock in the south central district of Montreal.

The dead are Mrs. D. Demontigny, a woman identified as Miss Laboie, Claudette Nihon, 5, and Carroll Nihon, 4.

Injured were Nihon, his wife and Albert Therrien, all of whom suffered shock and burns.

QUADRUPLETS ARE BORN; THREE GIRLS, ONE BOY

MILES CITY, Mont., June 14.—(AP)—Quadruplets, three girls and one boy, were born here today, to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Randash of Baker, Mont.

The attending physician, Dr. Elna M. Howard, said the four babes, placed in an incubator, are in apparent good health. They were born at 6 a.m. (M.S.T.)

Mrs. Randash, 34, is the wife of a garage owner.

There is one other child, five years old, in the family.

TRUMAN RATIFIES PEACE TREATIES WITH SATELLITES

Official Peace Documents With Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria Signed

MEASURES OF OPPRESSION STILL IN USE DENOUNCED

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—President Truman said today the governments of Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria "not only have disregarded the will of the majority of the people, but have resorted to measures of oppression against them."

The President made this statement regretfully in signing the instruments of ratification of the peace treaties with these former enemy states.

In a statement Mr. Truman said it is in the interests of the peoples of those countries to terminate the state of war which has existed between their governments and the United States for over five years.

Great Britain also has ratified, leaving Soviet Russia and the French Council of the Republic the only ones of the necessary Big Four signatories to act.

The President issued the two statements as he signed the final ratification of the peace treaties with Italy and the three Balkan countries following the Senate's approval.

Mr. Truman said the United States recognizes that some provisions of the Italian peace treaty are not satisfactory and declared it should be possible through the United Nations "to secure such changes in the treaty clauses as may be required in the light of future experience."

The Italians have been critical of many of the treaty terms which they consider too harsh. The President's statement appeared to hold the promise that the United States would work with them in the U. N. to obtain some changes.

As for the three Balkan treaties, Mr. Truman said he approved them because he considers it in the interests of the "Rumanian, Hungarian and Bulgarian peoples to terminate the state of war which has existed between their governments and the United States for over five years."

But he declared that "I feel I must publicly express regret that the governments of those countries not only have disregarded the will of the majority of those people but have resorted to measures of oppression against them."

He said he had hoped that regimes "truly representative of the people" would be established in those countries following their liberation "from the Nazi yoke' 'and in line with the British American-Soviet agreement at

DISGUISED POLICE NAB EXTORTIONIST

DETROIT, June 14. — (AP) — Detroit police and detectives, dressed as street cleaners, truck drivers and toy balloon salesmen, today captured a suspect in an attempted $8,000 extortion or ransom plot against Mrs. Marie Schweitzer, Saratoga General Hospital kitchen employe.

The trap was set at a northeast Detroit intersection after Mrs. Schweitzer had received three letters demanding she place $8,000 in small bills against a fence near Mt. Olivet cemetery.

The money was for the return of her 19-year-old son, Richard, a Hudson Motor Car company employe who disappeared from his rooming house May 23.

Inspector Joseph Krug of the police special investigation squad, who refused to reveal the name of the suspect, disclosed that a similar trap was set last Saturday. But a man seen loitering near the cemetery fence disappeared and no arrest was made.

The plot was repeated this afternoon. Detectives Lawrence Bleach and Jesse Stewart, wearing soiled working clothes, drove a truck to the corner where Mrs. Schweizer had been told to leave the ransom money and pretended the vehicle had broken down.

Two other teams of officers watched from a nearby house and a hidden automobile.

When each of the disguised policemen had taken his post, Mrs. Schweizer was driven to the intersection by a policewoman in a car with out-of-state licence plates. She dropped a dummy paper bag and walked away.

Inspector Krug said the suspect had loitered in the vicinity this morning, talked with the detective truck drivers and smoked several cigarets before he approached the dummy bag and was seized.

DRIVERS ASKED TO SECURE LICENSES

Many persons have to date failed to secure their auto drivers' licenses. They will have until June 30 inclusive to obtain them without an examination.

Walker Glenn, Jr., in charge of the granting of these licenses, urges all to pay attention to this matter at once to avert a last-minute rush.

'BIG' PLANE HITS VERMONT MOUNTAIN

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., June 15.—(Sunday)—(AP)—A "big" plane crashed on the lonely and heavily wooded slopes of Hawk's mountain early today and Civil Aeronautical authorities reported an Army B-29 was "missing."

The Civil Aeronautics communications office at Burlington reported the "missing" B-29, but added that neither the departure point nor destination of the craft was known.

At Westover Field, Mass.—The nearest large army air installation—officers said no planes from that field were in the air.

Fire Chief Myland H. Jordan reported "a big plane flew low across the community" shortly before the crash was reported.

A few minutes after the plane crossed Springfield—so low, Jordon said "it shook the windows in the houses"—the night telephone operator at Perkinsville, six miles north of this community, reported "a flash and a crash on Hawk's Mountain."

REDS CHARGED WITH PLANNING MONGOLIAN WAR

Chinese Say Enemy Using 30,000 Nip War Prisoners, Armored Tanks

MUKDEN BEING ENCIRCLED; RAID MADE NEAR PEIPING

NANKING, June 14.—(AP)—The government's central news agency charged today "a certain nation"—a Chinese press term for Russia—planned and directed the current Communist offensive in Manchuria, backing it with 30,000 Japanese war prisoners and 90 tanks.

This unsupported charge came as the Communists were reported steadily encircling Mukden and staging a daring raid in north China only four miles from Peiping.

With its hands full here, the government strove to find a local settlement of the outer Mongolian raid on far-western Sinkiang province. It said fighting had ceased in adjacent semi-antonomous Tibet, where the ruling Lamas had defied Chinese Military authority.

Central News in a dispatch from Mukden asserted the Communists obtained from "a special bureau" of the "certain nation" equipment for 20 divisions and that citizens of the "certain nation" or hand-picked Japanese war prisoners manned the tanks.

The same dispatch said more than 100,000 Koreans trained in northern Korea (the Russian zone) and a cavalry division from pro-Soviet outer Mongolia were in action on the Communist side in Manchuria.

The charge that Koreans and Japanese were being used has been frequently made, but this was the first accusation that the Russians themselves were in the field in the present drive.

Chinese press dispatches said the Communists in their effort to pinch off Mukden had attacked Panhsi, 35 miles south. They also were attacking east of Mukden and are battering with artillery at the railway city of Szepingkai to the north.

Associated Press Correspondent John Roderick in Peiping reported heavy gunfire was plainly heard there when the Communists raided a town four miles south of the city and another six miles to the southwest. The skies over Peiping were lit by gun flashes.

As a result of the raid, Roderick said, all rail traffic outside Peiping was temporarily halted, since the Communists also had blown up a section of the Peiping-Tientsin line.

Other dispatches said more than 30,000 Communist troops were assaulting Tsanghsien, on the Tientsin-Pukow railway 60 miles south of Tientsin.

There was no additional news of the fighting in far-off Sinkiang. A foreign office spokesman declined to comment on the Russian Tass Agen-

D-C 4 Crashes Into Virginia Mountain

Infant, School Girl, Honeymoon Couple Among Passengers; Red Cross Official Says All Met Swift Death

LEESBURG, Va., June 14.—(AP)—Searchers for a crashed Capital Airlines plane reached its fire-blackened fragments on a rugged mountain-side late today and found that all 50 aboard had met swift death.

"I don't think anyone on the plane suffered at all—it was instant death," said Gordon Stone, Red Cross official who was first to report finding the plane from the ground.

He said the craft, when it crashed last night in the rain just minutes shy of a landing at the Washington National Airport, apparently flew straight into the 45-degree side of the mountain, then burst into flame.

Jerry Korn, an Associated Press reporter at the scene, said the airliner apparently skidded up the steep mountainside for about 250 feet after it hit. The left wing, almost whole, was lodged near the foot of the rectangular clearing created by the crash. The tail assembly had slid to a point many feet farther up the hill but still stood upright.

One airline official, who had led the search to the plane through wild terrain under a steady five-hour downpour, sat down on a rock when he saw the wreckage and torn bodies and wept for several minutes.

This new aviation disaster stirred official activity in Washington and aviation circles expected some new government action toward flying safety.

James M. Landis, chairman of the civil aeronautics board, hurried down from New York and had two conferences with President Truman. However, the White House said there was no statement tonight.

Fresh from the scene of tragedy, Stone told reporters that "some of the people were thrown forward of the plane" with wreckage thick about them.

He said the first group at the scene carried 12 to 15 bodies that could be

PEACE-KEEPING PLANS STALLED

America - Russia Deadlocked In U. N. Over Atomic Controls, Armaments

LAKE SUCCESS, June 14.—(AP)—Differences between Russia and the United States threatened today to stall world peace-keeping machinery on all fronts.

This was underlined sharply by Soviet and American deadlocks in the United Nations on international atomic controls, reduction of world armaments, and establishment of a global police force.

The situation was emphasized by Chief U. S. delegate Warren R. Austin who declared in Boston yesterday that the present tension between the east and west, particularly between the United States and Russia, was delaying the establishment of peace machinery.

Only the Palestine issue was thus far considered relatively free of Russian-Western differences. This may be because none of the Big Five is represented on the U. N. Holy Land inquiry commission.

Nevertheless, the Palestine commission has come up against a snag as it prepares to begin its investigation in Jerusalem Monday.

The Arab higher committee for Palestine formally notified Secretary-General Trygve Lie that it would boycott the Holy Land injury.

East and west differences in the Balkan investigation group also were fanned anew as Yugoslavia charged that the conduct of Mark F. Ethridge, American member of the commission, had "imperilled" the work of that group and "the authority of the United Nations."

The Yugoslav charges were based on statements Ethridge made in an interview last Monday in which he asserted that Bulgaria, Albania and Yugoslavia were "arming, training, supplying and giving hospitalization

FRENCH ARTIST IN ATLANTA JAILED ON SODOMY CHARGE

ATLANTA, June 14.—(AP)—Paul ReFoule, French artist held on a sodomy charge, said in his jail cell today that police wanted to arrest him for the murder of his socialite wife, Peggy, "so they arrested me on something else."

"There is nothing to that either," he told newsmen of the sodomy charge shortly after he had been formally booked and fingerprinted.

Fulton county Police Chief Neal Ellis said that Refoule had signed a statement admitting to the sex perversion acts with which he is charged.

Speaking in halted English, the 36-year-old Refoule described his arrest as "terrible, horrible, a share." He was tired and haggard. His hair was rumpled and his blue, pin-striped suit wrinkled.

Two detectives brought him to Atlanta's grim Fulton county tower after his attorneys had waived preliminary hearing on the sodomy charge and his bond had been fixed at $10,000. The case will be presented to a county grand jury Tuesday. Con-

U. S. NEWS PLAN DECLARED VITAL BY STATE DEPT.

Assistant Secretary Attacks Opposition Speech Made By AP Director

UNDERSTANDING ABROAD CHIEF AIM OF PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—The State Department made public tonight a letter from Assistant Secretary of State William Benton to Kent Cooper contending that a government information program is necessary to develop understanding of the United States abroad.

The letter replied to a speech by Cooper in which he said that international amity can best be attained by International News Exchange through the press and its news agencies.

Cooper spoke May 26 at the 25th anniversary celebration of the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern university at Chicago. He explained he was speaking solely as an individual and not as the executive director of the Associated Press.

Declaring that "The United States is today grossly, shockingly and dangerously misunderstood by the peoples of many important countries," Benton said that he and Cooper "can agree on these two things the United States government ought to do:"

"1. It ought to move as it can to advance the cause of universal freedom of information, and

"2. It ought to encourage the activities of private, competitive agencies in the communications field."

"Beyond these steps," Benton continued, "you seem to be arguing that we do nothing—that we revert to status quo ante bellum. The opposing argument is that we should never again be caught so helpless; that the government must act to fill the information gaps that are now so glaring, in order that foreign peoples will not again be so easily misled about us; and that the government's method must be to give facts, and nothing but facts, openly and candidly and stead-

HUSH-HUSH PAPERS PUBLICATION ASKED

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) called upon the State department today for speedy publication of the hush-hush Molotov-Ribbentrop papers so the public may "have the facts."

Nazi documents detailing the conversations Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia had with Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, leading up to the non-aggression pact between their countries in 1939 have been captured by American troops.

The United States and Britain agreed last December to publish jointly these and other captured documents outlining the Nazi foreign policy from 1937 to 1941, and last month it was agreed that France would participate. But no early publication of the Molotov-Ribbentrop matter is planned.

"The State department officials admit they have a complete set of the Nazi foreign office papers including secret and confidential exchanges between Ribbentrop and Molotov," Ferguson told a reporter. "If we want a real foreign policy, then the public has got to have the facts."

Other senators, including Senator Ball (R-Minn), said they assume the documents have not been made public lest they further ruffle relations with Russia.

At senate hearings on the annual State department appropriation bill, F. H. Russell, department official, told Ferguson that the complete exchange between Ribbentrop and Molotov may be published "sometime this coming year."

But later, other department officials told senators that Secretary of State Marshall and Dean Acheson, retiring Undersecretary, had decided against early publication.

DES MOINES RIVER RISING; THREATENS CITY OF 32,000

Thousands Of Sandbags Used To Prevent Disaster; Large Areas Being Evacuated With Aid Of Navy Patrols

OTTUMWA, Ia., June 14.—(AP)—The flood-swollen Des Moines river increased its rate of rise here today and relief officials in this city of 32,000 countered with a stepped-up tempo of advance preparations designed to hold the damage below the extent of last week-end's disaster.

The river, after inundating thousands of acres of farm land and some communities upstream, started to rise here at the rate of a half foot an hour. At 1 p.m. (CST) the reading was 13.59 feet; flood stage is 9 feet.

The weather bureau in Des Moines said an expected crest of 20 to 20.5 feet was due here at noon tomorrow. The historical peak reached in last week's flood, when some 10,000 inhabitants were driven from their homes and businesses, was 20.24.

Thousands of sandbags were placed along riverfront areas in the hope that swift currents which did so much damage last week would be curtailed. The low-lying south side, still not cleaned up since a week ago, was virtually desolate today. Last-minute stragglers ere being assisted by navy patrols in evacuating the area.

Power generators, mobile kitchens, food, medicines, drinking water and other supplies were moved in from many places.

Upstream from here the town of Eddyville was abandoned for the second time, all of its 1,000 residents having moved out before the flood crest arrived.

At Tracy, northwest of Eddyville the river crested at a record height of more than 26 feet and rushed downstream. Flood stage at Tracy is 14 feet, but the town itself, a mile west of the river, suffered little damage.

Rollo H McCall, Red Cross regional director from St. Louis, said in Des Moines that 7,000 to 10,000 Iowans were homeless or would be by tonight. An estimated 16,000 were made homeless by last week's floods.

Elsewhere in Iowa the crisis—which last night was felt in a triangular area embracing roughly half of the state—appeared to have passed, at least temporarily. Weather observers, however, predicted new floods next week along the Mississippi from Keokuk, Ia., to Louisiana, Mo.

Two levees above St. Joseph, Mo., broke and released pressure of the Missouri river at that city. Upstream however the Missouri at Rulo, Neb., crested at a record 20.9 feet, about four feet above flood stage.

At Hamburg, in the southwestern corner of Iowa, the Nishnabotna river receded after reaching to within a half-block of the business district. An estimated 300 persons were homeless there.

Rivers in northeastern Nebraska and southeastern Iowa also were on the rise, but no serious damage was reported.

Missouri river flood crests in central Missouri, and Mississippi river crests south of Keokuk leveled out in the St. Louis area, leaving more than a million acres of land under water, some 24,000 homeless and damage estimated by army engineers at $28,000,000.

Rail and bus traffic in southern Iowa was seriously crippled and a score of highways were closed.

STENCH BOMB THROWN IN JERUSALEM CAFE

JERUSALEM, June 14.—(AP)—A stench bomb thrown by orthodox Jews into a cafe that violated the Jewish sabbath tonight caused the sounding of a general alarm in Jerusalem.

Police said patrons of the Europa Cafe on Zion Square in the heart of the city had fled when the stench bomb was thrown in from the street, thinking it was explosive, and that someone had notified officers who sounded the general alarm sirens.

ON ATOMIC PROGRAM

DR. S. A. CALDWELL

DR. RICHARD PRESENT

ATOMIC FUTURE TO BE TOLD IN CONFERENCE HELD HERE

The uses and future of atomic power will be the topic of two community meetings to be held at Northeast Junior college next Friday under the sponsorship of Louisiana State University.

The conference, part of a statewide program, will include two public sessions, one at 3:30 p. m., and the other at 8 p. m., at which various phases of atomic energy will be discussed by three Oak Ridge, Tenn., scientists, Dr. Richard D. Present, Dr. Ellison H. Taylor, and Dr. Stephen A. Caldwell, who is also dean of the L. S. U. junior division.

Two films will be available, one for the afternoon meeting and one for the night session. They are "Atomic Power" and "One World or None."

The Association of Scientists for Atomic Education which is conducting the series of programs is a voluntary organization of American scientists formed in January, 1947, and incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia.

The members banded together to form the association because they recognized (as stated in the organization charter), "the profound social effects of scientific progress and the imminent danger of catastrophic misuse of recent scientific developments because of a lack of appreciation of their full significance." They were aware of the appalling danger to civilization inherent in the release of atomic energy. And being convinced that scientists should no longer keep to their laboratory retreats and shirk all moral responsibility for the destructive forces they have created, association members adopted a plan of action in keeping with our democratic traditions. They decided on a program designed to initiate public discussion of the social implications of scientific progress in the belief that only an informed and awakened people is able to participate in the democratic processes which will precede the making of policy on the new discoveries of science.

The holding of community conferences on atomic energy is a part of this program of stimulating public discussion.

The impact of science on our modern civilization has created problems. The scientists have felt compelled to speak on these in the normal performance of their duty as citizens.

They feel, however, that the information which they impart through educational programs is only one contribution to the general effort to control nuclear energy before it is used to destroy civilization. They see international control of atomic energy, the elimination of all weapons of mass destruction and ultimately the elimination of war itself as the only means of preventing such a catastrophe. they recognize that the efforts of the whole community must be marshalled to solve this problem.

To achieve this purpose the association (according to its charter) adopted the following aims:

1. To initiate and conduct studies of the social implications of various aspects of scientific progress.

2. To educate scientists to their special responsibilities to society.

3. To make available the results of its studies and other pertinent information on the widest possible basis to all the people of the world.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, June 14.—(AP)—"How can they make such an awful picture?"

This is the query of many a disgruntled movie fan and the answer is "it's easy." The knack of making a bad picture can be readily analyzed, although this is a vastly unscientific industry. Briefly, it narrows down to three major factors.

1. Writing.

Even a capra with a cast of Crosby, Garson and Bogart can't fashion a good movie from a bad script. Even a Bette Davis can't read a silly line and make it sound like Shakespeare. Lady in the balcony: "Then why don't they wait until they get a good script?"

Could be, lady—and this is something writers don't like to admit—that there is not enough literary talent to go around. The guy who writes a turkey is either incompetent, or (kinder thought) has his stuff mangled by rewrite jobs that cloud any value he may have put into it.

Perhaps the villain of this category should be the producer. He can tell the writer what to write and he decides when a script is ripe for shooting. And often he will settle for a hackneyed script because he has two name stars who can sell a picture no matter how ill-conceived it is.

And he is responsible for the common and unhappy practice of beginning a picture without a finished script. Would Frank Lloyd Wright start building a house without a completed blueprint?

2. Direction.

A few (count 'em on one hand) directors make only good pictures, because they are careful about scripts. Many are good craftsmen, but will accept a bad script, from which they can make nothing but a bad movie. And there are some who couldn't make a passable B picture out of "Mrs. Miniver."

3. Acting.

Don't blame it all on the actors. Being the most visible of a film company, they often bear the blame for a wasted 90 minutes. True, there are some of them who couldn't do a good emotional scene if their own pet dogs were dying. But mostly they are an able lot, or able enough for their medium.

The fact is that with the wonders of the camera and the ability to repeat a scene until perfection, most actors should be able to acquit themselves well, given the proper handling. Directors have been able to evoke Academy Award performances from actors who had done nothing worthwhile before. Or since.

Not mentioning any names.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN AUTO-TRUCK COLLIDE

One person was slightly hurt and two others escaped injury when an automobile and truck collided at the intersection of Louisville and North Fifth about 8:15 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. O. L. Hammond, 205 School St., West Monroe, was taken to the St. Francis Sanitarium where she was being treated for minor bruises and then allowed to return home.

Police said the pick-up truck, operated by Robert Washington, Negro, 621 Pine street, as traveling east on Louisville, when it collided with the automobile driven by Mr. O. L. Hammond, which was traveling north on North Fifth.

In 1930 there were almost 50,000 cases of smallpox reported in the United States.

'SLEEPER' FOUND IN LABOR BILL

Clause Would Bar Newspapers From Commenting On Presidential Campaign

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D—Wyo) declared tonight a "sleeper" clause in the Taft-Hartley labor bill would bar most newspapers from commenting on the 1948 presidential campaign.

He said in an interview that "I think the thing is unconstitutional, but it illustrates the careless manner in which this bill has been drafted."

The drafters of the measure, now on President Truman's desk for approval or veto next week, apparently went much furtner than they intended to go by using loose and indefinable language, O'Mahoney said.

"The sponsors of this legislation, in shooting at labor organizations, have found many victims they had no intention of including," he said.

He cited a section which Chairman Taft (R—Ohio) of the senate labor committee said is designed to prohibit unions from making political contributions or spending union funds to publish comments on political campaigns.

O'Mahoney declared that the language of this section covers all corporations, including those which publish regular newspapers or magazines.

He said it also would prevent news services from sending men to cover political conventions.

What is prohibited to labor organizations is also prohibited to any corporation whatever, he said

"Therefore if a labor organization is prohibited from making an expenditure to publish political views in any newspaper or bulletin, any corporation whatever is likewise prohibited from making such an expenditure," he continued.

The section O'Mahoney cited reads in part:

"It is unlawful . . . for any corporation whatever, or any labor organization to make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any election at which presidential and vice presidential electors or a senator or representative in . . . congress are to be voted for, or in connection with any primary election or political convention or caucus held to select candidates for any of the foregoing offices."

Violations may be punished by a fine of $5,000 against the corporation and $1,000 or a year in prison against any officer or director of the corporation.

The word stadium originally meant a certain type of race, run by the Romans, and later meant the place where races took place.

Children Eager For More Books And Bigger Library

Letters To News-Star—World Point To Need For Better Facilities In Parish

Since the opening of the News-Star-World VOTE-FOR-BOOKS letter contest several weeks ago, the postman has showered us with a daily cascade of pleas from the youngsters of Ouachita parish for more books, and for the other benefits the half-mill library tax will afford.

Many of the several hundred letters received in the past few weeks have been from boys and girls in the outlying sections of the parish where there are no library facilities, and where they are forced to go without books during the summer months when transportation to Monroe and West Monroe is difficult and hap-hazard at best.

Judging from the various entries, here is an overwhelming demand for a bookmobile—a traveling library which would stop at every town in the parish, bringing the youngsters all the books they want on a regular schedule.

The enthusiasm over the prospects of more books and a better library goes beyond a desire for mere entertainment and points to a sound understanding of the role books and education play in the lives of adults as well as of boys and girls still in school.

Joan Gibson, a fifth grade student at Barkdull Faulk school, writes:

Dear Vote-for-Books Club:

Our whole class is most interested in the library tax election.

The reason I am interested is because I have many relatives in the country. They do not have books to read. If the bookmobile came around to the store they trade at they wouldn't be half so lonesome. And from books they could learn to read better and learn bigger words. They could also get a higher education from books.

From a Swartz girl comes this letter:

I am writing to tell you how much a bookmobile would be appreciated out here. My mother and I both like to read. We hope you can send a bookmobile out here. We have many neighbors that would like to read the books that were sent out here.

I am going to encourage people that can vote to vote for books for us.

Vivian Hare

A youngster from Route 1 Monroe writes:

I am very interested in the growth of our library. I think the library facilities should be available for every person in Ouachita Parish.

I live off the Winnsboro Road and cannot always make trips into the library for summer reading material. There are other children living in the vicinity where I live. We would all enjoy reading books from the bookmobile if it should come near our homes.

Your friend,
Clara Faye Moore

And from 11-year-old twins Ethel and Peggy Alexander, Sterlington, this breathless appeal:

What a thrill it would be to have a bookmobile come by our home where we might obtain all the good books we would like to read during vacation.

The libraries in Monroe are fine, but living in Sterlington we do not find it easy to go to these libraries. We no longer have our school books in our homes to read, and many children's magazines and books are beyond our reach in price. It would be heavenly to have the bookmobile to bring us good books to read which we are starving for now. Will we really have it?

Linda Evans, 3311 Gordon Avenue, Monroe, declares:

I would like to join the Vote-for-Books Club. I can't vote during the tax election in July, but I can assist in getting qualified voters to vote for the half-mill tax.

I will enter the seventh grade next year. I realize I will need to do more reference work than I have been doing in grade school. I would appreciate the opportunity to do some of this reference work in the evenings at the public library.

I enjoy reading good books. I would like to have more good books from which to choose when I go to the library.

Many adults of Ouachita parish do not realize the need for better library facilities. We hope they will become more interested and help us build a library of which we will be proud.

The Vote-for-Books contest is open to any boy and girl who lives in Ouachita parish, and who feels the need for better library facilities. The contest will close Wednesday, June 25, and the winners, who will be awarded a choice of their favorite books, will be named in the Morning World the following Sunday.

All letters should be addressed to the VOTE-FOR-BOOKS club, in care of the News-Star-World.

Potential Benefits on Ouachita

Further elaborating upon the report recently mentioned in these columns concerning the potential volume of freight and the benefits to be derived from the development of the Ouachita River, the following statement was made by E. Gordon Wright, a member of the Ouachita Valley Association:

"The Executive Committee is very gratified to know that the benefits to be derived will justify the expenditure estimated at an initial cost of $50,000,000. This report was approved by the executive committee. It should be pointed out that the very prominent engineering firm of Elliott and Porter of St. Louis, Mo., will defend their report at the hearing when it is called by the Army Engineers of the Vicksburg district."

The purpose of this report is to present, in the light of present day conditions and anticipated future developments, a picture of the commercial and economic situation of the Ouachita Valley, its relationship to the balance of the country, and an understanding of how the river which drains the valley can be made to assist in the enhancement of its prosperity and well being.

Many previous investigations and reports have been made both by private interests and by the Federal Government. A symposium of these previous reports would serve no useful purpose here. It is proposed to show that the full potentialities of this valley have been only partially exploited by the existing navigation project, and that the complete picture of these potentialities has not previously been set forth. A factual picture of the industry and commerce of the region embraced is presented in order to facilitate conclusions as to the feasibility of a navigation project linking the area with the balance of the territory served by the inland waterways system and by seaports.

A field survey was conducted to determine, from the standpoint of existing businesses, potential tonnage which might reasonably be expected to move on the waterway in the event that the proposed improvement is executed.

The potential tonnage discovered by the field survey was subjected to a careful analysis as to its eligibility for water movement and rate studies were made to arrive at an estimate of probable traffic and the savings which would accrue.

It seems that at last a definite step has been taken to utilize the Ouachita's facilities, a step which has been advocated here for many years.

A BAD PRACTICE

Official Washington, including war and state departments, is concerned about the flood of writing authored by retired officers of the army and navy. It is feared military secrets will be made public by those no longer subject to military restraint. So genuine is the concern there is talk of invoking a military law against certain authors still subject to it.

Nor is the practice confined to the military. There has been a demand from his successor that former Secretary of the Treasury Henry C. Morgenthau return the vast amount of material taken when he left that office. The material, described as being in diary form, consists of 900 or more volumes. It is taken for granted the former secretary intends to write a book on the material in this mammoth diary. In such a vast amount of material it is certain there are references to many important state matters which should not be divulged to the world.

The question to be determined in the Morgenthau case is whether tenure in federal office, great or small, entitles the holder to divulge, after he goes out, most of what took place? Is public office to be merely a stepping stone to a literary career? The custom of former public officials writing books on things they encountered while in office has become big business. If former cabinet members have the privilege, why not others?

If Morgenthau can be forced to return his diary a point will have been gained and a policy established which will safeguard the nation from future pseudo authors.

VANISHING RESOURCES

America has enough high grade iron ore left to last 17 years, according to most recent estimates. This is less alarming than guesses during the war which were that this resource would be exhausted in five or six years. This nation would not have enough oil for another war, according to government officials. One-half of the copper being used in the United States today is imported. Known lead and zinc ore bodies will be exhausted in a few years.

The cream has been skimmed off the nation's resources of many other metals, with foreign shipments replacing domestic production. There is half as much saw timber in the United States as there was in 1910. Enough natural gas is wasted in the United States to provide fuel and power for Britain.

The United States loses 500,000 acres of tillable land annually to erosion. This has not reached serious proportions because land under cultivation totals 360,000,000 acres and 100,000,000 acres more could be made productive by draining, reclamation and irrigation.

Fifty years ago men first began preaching the doctrine of conservation, but little progress was made until recent years. Now the situation may be approaching a point where drastic action may be unavoidable. Russia has illimitable resources and is beginning to use them to build up its national power.

America grew great upon its natural resources and will continue to be great only so long as it has ample natural assets to draw upon.

HOLLYWOOD, June 14.—Rumor has it that Louis B. Mayer and the Aga Kahn, wealthiest of Indian potentates, are pooling forces to promote a foreign race track. . . . Authoress Mary Chase and Producer Brock Pemberton will insist on Joe E. Brown playing the top role when and if "Harvey" is screened. . . . Altarbound: Rochelle Hudson and Dick Hyland, sports columnist and former husband of Adela Rogers St. John. . . . Actor John Kellogg and his missus, Linda Brent, are consulting divorce attorneys.

I hear that Gene Kelly, Van Johnson and Frank Sinatra are collaborating on a circus story they hope to sell to M.-G.-M., with Kelly playing an acrobat, Johnson a clown and Sinatra a lion tamer. . . . Pals say that Boots Mallory and Herbert Marshall, who were planning marriage, have chilled. . . . Ha! Barton McLane's offer of $200 for the return of his lost pooch, brought 300 people with stray dogs to his door. . . . If that huge flying boat built by Howard Hughes and Henry Kaiser is offered for sale as surplus property by the government, there's a syndicate of top movie names waiting to buy it and convert it into a deluxe beach nite club.

Secretly married: John Fostini, radio actor, and Lydia Lewis, west coast opera singer. . . . Stand-by for another big shakeup at M.-G.-M., with plenty of players slated for the guillotine. . . . Recommended: 20th Century-Fox's "Bob, Son of Battle" (Lon McCallister-Peggy Ann Garner-Edmund Gwenn). Olivant's immortal classic furnishes screen fare to delight every audience. . . . Good: RKO's "Riffraff" (Pat O'Brien-Walter Slezak-Anne Jeffreys). Melodramatic adventure in Panama, satisfactorily seasoned with romance. . . . Columbia's "Gunfighters" (Randolph Scott-Barbara Britton-Dorothy Hart). High class western action-drama that will score a bulls-eye with thrill-seekers. . . . RKO's "Seven Keys to Baldpate" (Phillip Terry-Jacqueline White-Eduardo Ciannelli). A time-tested favorite, screened for the fifth time, and still entertaining. . . . Best performance: Edmund Gwenn in "Bob, Son of Battle."

In today's publicity barrage is a dispatch from RKO, requesting all readers to marvel at the versatility of Sir Cedric Hardwicke, currently playing a mean-hearted, cantankerous villain in a stage play every evening, and a kindly, lovable gentleman by day in an RKO picture. While freely admitting Sir Cedric's genuine ability as an actor, such a publicity item leaves me gasping. It's so blatant an admission that most Hollywood "actors" are nothing more than types. For heaven's sake, what's remarkable about a trained mime being able to play more than one kind of a role?

News that Producer Sol Lesser will combine Robert Louis Stevenson's "Kidnapped" and "David Balfour" is a sequel to "Kidnapped," but unless the proposed picture is to be five or six hours long, it will be utterly impossible to use the story as it was conceived by the author. Perhaps Lesser's picture will be top-notch entertainment, but it won't be Stevenson. I, for one, am of the opinion that even though the copyright has expired, it's unethical to change a best-loved novel's plot. It's neither fair to the man who created it, nor to the readers who know and love it.

A lady columnist took time out the other day to criticize Sterling Hayden because he's decided to turn his back on movies in favor of a four-month honeymoon with his new bride. "Very foolish," said she. "After his long absence in the army, he should be concentrating on his career." Well, from where I sit, it looks like Hayden is showing a better sense of values than his critic. Putting career ahead of marriage has wrecked more Hollywood homes than any other one factor. I'd like to congratulate Hayden, rather than criticize him, for being smart enough to realize that real success is as much a matter of the heart as it is of the pocketbook.

Speaking of Hollywood careers, everyone seems to be astonished (including Charlie McCarthy, who's left simply speechless) by the news that Edgar Bergen is abandoning his dummy pal to play a straight acting role. Maybe Bergen's decided that producers haven't been able to see the forest because of the tree.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Everybody haw-hawed when Henry Wallace in a barnstorming speech at Chicago several weeks ago proposed a positive peace program. It involved American investments and exports of $150 billion over a period of years to raise the standards of living in Europe and Asia. The general verdict was that this was just another of Henry's hybrid, cracked-corny ideas in a milk bottle.

But in the June issue of Fortune—self-styled magazine of business—there is a lead editorial three pages long which proposes an idea so similar to Henry's it will make your eyes pop.

It would be wrong to believe that this editorial was inspired by Henry Wallace. Fortune goes to press weeks in advance, and this editorial was probably in type before Henry Wallace got to Chicago. As a matter of fact, Fortune rejects Wallace's general philosophy with this comment:

"Neville Chamberlain believed in 1937 that the world could 'do business' with Hitler. Henry Wallace believes in 1947 that the world can 'do business' with Stalin. We believe both proposals to be identical fallacies."

Despite this, the fact that Wallace and Fortune could come up with similar proposals should be significant of something, and the casual bystander is entitled to ask that old rhetorical bromide, "Who's Looney Now?"

The Fortune proposal is too long to quote in full here. Also it is tough going and should be read a couple of times by every businessman to get its full meaning. It is addressed "To the Boards of Directors of American Business:" Its high spots go something like this:

U. S. Production To Serve the World

It begins with a proposal that a 50-year lease on peace would be worth $100 billion to American business. That's $50 billion less than Wallace proposes, but it's $2 billion a year for 50 years. This is considered cheap when compared to the $100 billion a years for three years which the last war cost.

"If the U. S. businessman does not thrust . . the whole business process . . into helping save the world," says the editorial, "the world will not be saved. It's as flat as that."

Wars, it says, are caused by the fact that there is not enough food, shelter or goods to go around. The only way nations have tried to get enough in the past has been to go out and take it from each other by force.

The U. S. is the only country on the globe with an organized capacity to produce and re-produce. The idea is to put that production to the service of the world—not for altruism, but for world policy and for profit.

"We believe," say the anonymous editors of Fortune, "that $100 billion invested in peace now would begin returning net profits long before the first 50 years of our leasehold had run its course."

Four Steps To Peace

There are four steps which Fortune says U. S. business should take to make this policy stick. Remember as you read them that this is Big Business talking, not Henry Wallace:

1. A 15 to 20 per cent reduction in the U. S. internal price level. This reduction would be made "in the beginning" at the expense of profits. The cost would be $750 million a month. But as prices declined, purchasing power would rise and the volume of business with it. This 15 to 20 per cent price reduction would make it possible for foreign consumers to buy on U. S. markets.

2. A series of massive U. S. loans or grants abroad. Some of this would come out of the hides of Americans in the form of taxes. But Big Businessman Beardsley Ruml is quoted to the effect that nine-tenths of this money would be spent in the U. S. because "It has no place else to go."

3. The U. S. should encourage imports. U. S. businessmen will have to reject utterly the philosophy of that wing of the Republican party which would return to the days of high protective tariff. Big Businessman Will Clayton is quoted to the effect that the U. S. could raise its imports by $20 billion with only good results.

4. Wherever U. S. money goes there should go U. S. engineers to help spend the money loaned. This is not to control foreign industry, but to make it productive.

"It is not too much to hope that this plan might be organized between business and government." Fortune concludes. "What is the Department of Commerce for?" it asks without mentioning Big Businessman Averell Harriman who heads it. "Is it only to organize statistics and standardize pipe sizes?"

"Is the National Association of Manufacturers only a lobby for organized selfishness? Is the International Chamber of Commerce merely a sounding board for stuffed shirts?"

The alternatives are said to be One Last World War—the one that will never get into the history books—or Russia wins the world by default.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture: II Kings 25:1-12; Jeremiah 37

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Kingdom of Judah was a small kingdom set between the great empires of the ancient world. It was always in some danger from its powerful enemies and especially from their ambition for conquest and world domination. The life of the people and the policy of their rulers was affected by factors and powers outside their own borders over which they had little or no control.

It would seem that our great North American democracies have little in common with that small, ancient country so beset with danger from its powerful neighbors. But our domestic life and our policies and actions are in large measure determined by conditions in the rest of the world.

It was not always so. The oceans once kept us comparatively isolated and we used our isolation so well that, instead of having our borders bristling with guns, as in Europe, we established and have kept the peace for over 130 years, along an unfortified border of over 3000 miles between Canada and the U. S. It has long been my belief that in our ministry of relief to Europe and Asia we ought to be making a little more of that example.

Despite the peaceful attitude and achievement of our two North American countries, we have within this 20th century been involved in wars that were not of our own making. Death, suffering, and tragedy have come to our homes. And now we face conditions in which it may all happen again. We know that we are not, and cannot be, isolated.

What, then should be our course? Since I am a preacher, I think there is something we can learn from the lesson of Israel and the fall of the Kingdom of Judah.

Whatever safety there was for that kingdom lay in the preservation of her own integrity and moral strength and in straight and honest dealing with neighboring nations.

It was this that prophets, like Jeremiah, proclaimed as the only right course. But neither King nor people would listen. They turned their own life into corruption, and they engaged in crooked intrigues. Instead of listening to the prophet, they cast him into a foul dungeon.

If we would heed the lesson of Israel, we would engage all our powers in the correction of evils and abuses in our internal life. Nothing would make us stronger and wiser for the inevitable part that we shall have to play in world affairs.

Our Children

The two boys of the family were talking over their plans for the future, trying to settle on the work they hoped to do and the courses they would take in college to fit them for that work.

"I still think I'd like to be a lawyer. A corporation lawyer, making big money. I'm going to be rich, live in a fine house, play golf, ride a horse, and be a bigwig. You know, like the Squire."

"O, you're such a show-off," laughed his brother. "Imagine. You with the robes making a speech in the Supreme Court."

"That's just where I'm going," said the young aspirant for court honors. "You'll see. I've got everything all planned out.."

"And what are you going to be?" asked Father of the younger boy, with deep interest in every tone of his voice.

"I think I'd like to be a writer and maybe a professor of English like Dr. Billy Phelps," and the younger boy's face wore the faraway look of the dreamer. I loved Dr. Phelps."

"My goodness," said his father utterly astounded. What's getting into you? There's no money in that. How'd you know you could be like that professor? Most of them starve to death. Only once in a century is one of them a success."

"O, they don't starve," said the lad. "They seem to get along. Anyway, they do what they like to do. Isn't that something?"

"Get that idea right out of your head—now. I'm not sending you to college to be a professor, unless you want to study chemistry or something useful like that. Pick something that will bring in the money—like your brother."

"He's taking a chance, too, isn't he? How does he know he'll be a Justice Holmes any more'n I know I'll be a Dr. Phelps? I'll take a chance."

Listening to the boys I thought of the ancient truth: The kingdom is within you. Given the standards of truth, honor, worthy work, the inheritance of good is yours. A man or woman who holds to those standards, who strengthens his own kingdom of soul and spirit will have all other things added to him. In the words of the Psalmist, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

Bashfulness is a difficult childhood trait. How to cope with it is discussed by Dr. Patri in his leaflet P-9, "The Bashful Child."

Pitching Horseshoes
By Billy Rose

Seeing as how I'm now in the cut-rate philosophy business, I decided yesterday to have a look at what the competition had to offer.

I went into a bookshop and said, "Give me a book on philosophy."

Billy Rose

Any particular kind of philosophy?" asked the clerk.

"Oh, something around two dollars," I told him.

He handed me "Critique of Pure Reason" by Immanuel Kant. I lugged it back to the house, sent out for two weeks' provisions, and opened the book. I picked out a chapter with a catchy title—"The Transcendental Unity of the Apperception."

Two hours and ten aspirins later, I tried another chapter which concerned itself with Kant's notions on Ethics.

According to Mr. K.'s rules for behavior, one should never tell the little white lie. Any violation, however slight, breaks down the whole structure of morality. If a loony with a loaded revolver busts into a room and yells, "Where's my wife? I want to kill her," according to Kant you've got to tell him. If you don't, you're striking a blow at Truth.

Well, it's a good thing for Immanuel Kant and his philosophy that he never met Sally Rand.

I'll tell you why.

Back in 1936, Sally was doing her fan-is-quicker-than-the-eye act at the big cabaret which I had produced for the Fort Worth Centennial Exposition. The dancer's nude deal made a big hit with the Art-conscious customers at the Casa Manana that summer.

One night, Governor Dave Sholtz of Florida paid us a visit. I stopped by his table to give him the big hello and to ask him if he'd mind being introduced from the stage just before the show. I explained it was our custom to have visiting celebrities take a bow.

Sholtz was a friendly fellow and said he'd be honored. As I strted to walk away, he asked me if Miss Rand was around. Said he had met My Gal Sal some years before when she played the Citrus Circuit in his state.

I told him Sally was probably in her dressing room and asked him if he'd like to go back and say howdy. He said, "Sure," and I took him backstage.

I knocked at Miss Rand's dressing-room door and she yelled, "Come in." When the Governor and I entered, Sally was flat on the floor, wrapped in somethink pink, her chin propped up on her hands.

She was reading the Bible. No, dear reader, that's not a typographical error—Sally Rand was reading the Bible.

Scoffers will please leave quietly. Sally's worked for me a couple of times, and you can take my word for it the little lady has plenty of grey matter under that blonde hair. She's always reading something or other. That summer it was the Bible, straight through from Genesis to Revelation.

After Sally and the Governor had swapped hellos, he picked up the Good Book and said, "Let me read you a short passage which has always been a source of comfort to me when I have the miseries."

He turned to a page in the Book of Psalms and began reading quietly.

I heard Whiteman's orchestra tuning up and slipped out of the room. A few moments later I was at the center microphone on the stage, addressing the huge Casa Manana audience. As I introduced the first couple of celebrities I had listed on a little card, I kept looking offstage in the direction of Sally's dressing room.

Someone in Sholtz's party stood up and hollered, "Introduce the Governor of Florida!"

"I'm sorry," I lied. "The Governor's talking long distance to Tallahassee."

Immanuel Kant or no Immanuel Kant, I wasn't going to tell those 4,000 people that the Governor of Florida couldn't appear because he was reading the Bible in Sally Rand's dressing room!

HOLY LAND INQUIRY GROUP BEGINS TOUR

JERUSALEM, June 14.—(AP)—The first members of the United Nations special commission on Palestine arrived today amid rising speculation that its ultimate recommendations may bring partition but not peace to the Holy Land.

Justice Emil Sandstroem of Sweden, commission chairman, said upon his arrival at Lydia airdrome that the group will tour Palestine prior to opening the inquiry "in order to acquaint ourselves with the country." The commission will hold a plenary session on Monday, then adjourn for the tour.

Sandstroem emphasized that despite the Arab boycott of the commission its members will tour both Arab and Jewish sections "because we want a full picture of the situation despite the Arab intention to withhold their cooperation."

The Palestine Arabs formally notified the United Nations at Lake Success last night they were boycotting the commission.

NEGRO INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

William Perry, 29-year-old Negro, 14th street alley, was injured Saturday forenoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mose Roane, 53, Negro, Route 3, at 14th and Washington streets.

Perry, police said, started across the street and then, trying to avoid an oncoming car, backed up into the path of Roane who was traveling south on 14th street.

A Lemothe ambulance carried him to the St. Francis sanitarium where he was found to have a back injury. Roane was taken into custody and charged with driving without brakes and with causing injury to a person, police reported.

COLLAPSES AT HOME

Fred King, 40, was taken to the St. Francis sanitarium at 1:30 p. m., Saturday after he had collapsed at his residence, 516 Smith street, West Monroe. Drivers of the Hall ambulance, called by King's wife, found the stricken man recovered on their arrival, but carried him to the hospital for further examination.

Looking Ahead In Washington

(By The World Staff of Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—In ending household sugar rationing, the administration was gambling with shortages.

Everybody will have enough sugar if there is no large amount of hoarding, say agriculture department officials. But some persons may take more than their fair share between now and October 31, when price controls expire—hedging against a possible price increase. Then in November and December, say the officials, sugar might not be available at all stores.

The agriculture men say that prices will not go up more than two or three cents a pound if consumers buy sanely.

Fed Faces Department

WASHINGTON—A lost memorandum caused all the red faces over the Braden-Messersmith resignation fumble.

President Truman patched up U. S. differences with Argentina on June 3. Next step was to be the tactful liquidation of the Braden-Messersmith feud. The resignation of Ambassador George Messersmith was to be announced about June 10, and Assistant Secretary of State Braden's resignation was to be made public June 12. But it happened in reverse order.

Braden had formally submitted his resignation, and when it went to the White House the state department attached a memorandum saying it should not be given out before June 12. Somehow, the memo got lost.

White House Secretary Charles G. Ross on June 4 received several inquiries about Braden's status. He found the resignation, and, since no memorandum was with it, he announced it at once.

When President Truman at his news conference next day was questioned about Messersmith's status, the president said the ambassador's mission in Argentina was finished but that he had not seen his resignation.

Messersmith's resignation, in fact had not been formally submitted. But the state department, highly embarrassed by then, prevailed on the White House to accept it anyway, despite word from Messersmith that he could be useful in Argentina if allowed to remain there a while longer. So late on the day of the president's news conference, June 5, the ambassador's resignation was announced—not by the president but by the state department.

The department acted in a hurry, not only to save Braden further discomfiture but also to check speculation that Braden, a harsh critic of the Peron government, was being let out while Messersmith, more friendly toward Argentina, would continue to influence U. S. policy.

Indian

LAKE SUCCESS—Partition of India is expected to produce at least two members of the United Nations where only one exists now. U. N. officials believe Pakistan and Hindustan will apply for Separate memberships. And if the reshuffle in India results in independence for the 500-odd princely states, they expect that applications will be received from at least the larger ones, such as Hyderabad, headed by the fabulously rich Nizam.

On Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON — Unless dopesters miss their guess, Senate Republicans eventually will approve President Truman's nomination of Philip B. Perlman of Maryland to be solicitor general. . . .

The Senate foreign relations committee, however, gives no outward sign of approving the nomination of Francis Biddle, former attorney general, to be the U. S. representative on the U. N. social and economic council. Some of the committee's Democrats, as well as the Republicans, seem to consider Biddle too much of a New Dealer. . . .

Reciprocal trade treaty negotiators are trying to compromise differences over the international trade charter now being drawn at Geneva. They are hoping they can avoid a public roasting by the Senate finance committee, a majority of whose members apparently don't like some of the charter's provisions. If the committee makes a statement of policy, it may well sink the Geneva committee.

German Problem

BERLIN—Anglo-American officials are not making any optimistic forecasts for the success of the new German economic council in their zones . . . But they are looking with some hope to the conference of ministers president at Munich, the first such all-Germany gathering since the war. They say airing common problems might eliminate much bad feeling over charges that zones are not meeting their promised food deliveries.

Progress

WASHINGTON—Dishwashing days are over if you like this new idea, described by R. W. Hoecker, of the agriculture department's bureau of agriculture economics: some precessors are selling frozen pre-cooked foods on disposable plates. At mealtime you just shove the whole business in the oven and heat. After eating, you throw the plate away.

National Notes

WASHINGTON—When Lieut. Gen. Ira Eaker retires as deputy commanding general of the Army Air Forces next month he will spend his time fruit growing and writing . . . The CIO's political action committee (CIO-PAC) is about to start another drive for money, its first in an off-election year. Secretary-treasurer David J. McDonald says the funds are "vital to build PAC organizations to answer anti-labor congressmen in 1948."

Hot Steel Issue

WASHINGTON—Cooly raising a hot issue, Budget Bureau Economist Louis H. Beam says that annual steel production capacity must be increased by 1950 from its present 91,000,000 tons to 110,000,000.

This is contrary to the views of some of the industry's giants, including U. S. Steel. The whole sizzling issue of steel capacity has been ducked by the commerce department in a study of the industry which it is making.

Present capacity is more than ample, some of the steel leaders have said, predicting that demand will decline by the end of the year to a point where much steel making equipment will be idle.

But Beam in a study declares that present steel shortages already have helped cause "some curtailment in employment." He warns that "there could be more unemployment as employers sought to increase production per man hour without a larger supply of raw materials for expended production."

Among the Airmen

WASHINGTON—National airlines directors will hold their quarterly meeting next Thursday while flying in a new DC-6 . . . A practically hand-made engine has been installed in the modified P-80 Shooting Star with which the U. S. hopes to wrest the world speed record (616 MPH) from Britain in a week or so. If the engine is as good as expected, it will soon become the production model . . . Look for an important development shortly in airborne radar for navy transport planes. Commercial airlines may be interested . . . British Overseas Airways is beginning experiments with refueling in flight. Some Lancasters on the London-Bermuda run will make the trip non-stop, getting a new gas supply in mid-air near the Azores.

The American people spent about $4 billion for medical services in 1940.

The winter of 1946-47 was the worst seen in England for 70 years.

SCIENTISTS FIND AWESOME WEAPON

British Make Discovery; Not Atomic Or Biological Warfare Device

CINCINNATI, June 14.—(AP)—"As awesome in its effects as the atomic bomb," said bio-physicist James Marion Snodgrass today in referring to a secret Anglo-American war weapon he aided a group of scientists in developing.

Snodgrass, 39-year-old chief engineer of the motion picture division of the Dayton-Acme Co., Cincinnati consultant engineering firm, was reluctant to discuss the weapon but persistent newsmen in an interview extracted this additional information:

1. It is not connected in any way with the atomic bomb.

2. It is not a biological warfare weapon.

Development of the weapon, started during the war, was not completed until after hostilities were ended.

4. Snodgrass was a civilian attached to the national defense research council when he joined British and New Zealand scientists in development of the weapon.

5. The weapon was conceived by the British and although United States naval officers were not enthusiastic, the British pressed the project, first on an obscure Pacific island and later in New Zealand.

6. The U. S. navy received reports during development.

Snodgrass, former teacher of psychology at Oberlin (O.) college, kept mum when asked whether the weapon was for use against humans, aircraft or naval vessels.

Existence of the new weapon was disclosed when Prof. T. D. J. Leech of New Zealand was mentioned in the birthday honors list of King George VI in London. Later, a dispatch quoted Leech as saying he received the honor for his work in connection weapon that was an effective alternate to the atomic bomb.

Asked to comment on Leech's statement, Snodgrass said:

"First reports are substantially true but perhaps they were exaggerated."

The Cincinnati scientist gave only one hint as to the nature of the weapon.

As he disclosed development of the weapon started shortly after the American landing on Tarawa island, he turned to a reporter and said, "You remember there was heavy loss of life."

"Did the weapon have anything to do with casualties or some military problem encountered on Tarawa?" the newsman asked.

Snodgrass replied: "Could be."

PARKER SHADES JACK TUERO FOR SOUTHERN TITLE

Charlotte Padgett Loses Out In Semi-Finals Of Women's Division

By Carol Hart

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(AP)—Tennis-wise Frankie Parker, 30-year-old No. 3 player in the nation, won the Southern Amateur tennis title here today, but not before an uproariously partisan crown had seen a New Orleans boy, Jack Tuero, extend the veteran to the limit.

Tuero, a Tulane University freshman and Southeastern Intercollegiate conference champion, yesterday toppled Gardner Mulloy in the semi-final. Today the slim 20-year-old Louisianian forced Parker to employ every trick in the trade to win 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6. The match lasted three hours and both players were wringing wet at the finish.

Parker, twice former National champion, opened up a two-set lead with his precision playing, but Tuero's tireless retrieving and an apparent third-set letup by Parker enabled the Louisianian to win the set. Tuero won the first five games of the set, then sniped away to take the payoff game after Parker had won three.

Taking the play away from Parker in the fourth set, Tuero succeeded with a series of smashing placements which forced his opponent into repeated error and deadlocked the match at two sets each.

In the crucial fifth set the lead changed hands twice and then was twice tied—at 5-5 and 6-6—before Parker's superior court strategy carried him to the championship. Parker, despite his age, seemed physically stronger than Tuero down the home stretch, draining the younger man's energy with sharply angled cross-court shots.

Statistics showed that Tuero scored 45 placements to 44 for Parker, but that he committed 103 errors to 94 for Parker.

Through both Parker and Tuero played prep school tennis in New Orleans, the crowd was with Tuero all the way, whooping encouragement at him whenever he managed a shot that stopped Parker.

Parker said after the match that he considered Tuero's backhand shots "terrific."

Marta Barnett of Miami and Jean Clark of Birmingham won their way into the finals of the women's singles, which will be played off tomorrow afternoon.

Marta breezed by Nancy Morrison of Palm Beach, Fla., 6-1, 6-0 and Jean won over Charlotte Padgett of Monroe 6-2, 6-0 in the semi-final test today.

JONESVILLE, La., June 14.—(Special)—Jonesville's American Legion Junior baseball team will match wiles Sunday with the strong Herman J. Remondet Legion Juniors from Natchez, Miss. The game will be played on th eBlock High School diamond at 3 p. m.

Jim Wilson will probably take the mound for the Jonesville team.

Others likely to see action in the contest for Jonesville include Dudley Walker, Ted Collins, John Stanley Farmer, Sonny Finlay, Jimmie Parks, Dorsil Humble, Bob Andrews, Paul Jones, Tommie Smith, C. E. Cotton, Red Fritz and James Bordelon.

BATTLING BELLES GRAB SPOTLIGHT AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN MATCH

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Mary Kirk Brown, five-time-married actress and cafe society figure, apologized today for staging a bout of her own in Madison Square Garden last night, thereby winning withdrawal of a charge of disorderly conduct brought against her by another fair boxing fan.

"I accept your apology," said Miss Betty Bunetta, 26, of Passaic, N. J., the other principal in the outside-the-ring fight, who then asked Magistrate Abraham Bloch for permission to withdraw her complaint.

Patrolman Brian McDermott, who acted as the third man in the ring for the unexpected fracas, said it started during the Charles Fusari-Tony Pellone fight and continued this way:

Miss Brown and her party were rooting for Pellone. Miss Bunnetta—across the aisle—was for Fusari. When Miss Brunnetta, her three brothers and a priest cheered for their man, Miss Brown emitted a sound politely described as a "razzberry."

Miss Bunnetta chose to ignore the matter but soon the counter cheering descended to name-calling, then to hair pulling.

Garden lights flashed on several times in an effort to keep only one attraction going in the Garden at once.

When the fight ended—the Fusari-Pellone one—the other continued until McDermott arrested the 33-year-old actress. At the West 47th street police station Miss Brown sought a counter charge against Miss Brunnetta and party but it was refused. Instead Miss Brown whiled away a few hours in the clink until a friend put up $500 bail.

Pellone won the other fight.

GLOBE TROTTERS TO FACE ROYALS

The Monroe Royals Deluxe, Negro baseball club, will meet the hard hitting Natchez Globe Trotters here this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Casino Park.

The Royals' manager, Joe Gulley, who formerly piloted the Monroe All-Stars of 1945 and 1946, apparently has an even better club in the Royals and is planning some surprises for the Globe Trotters. Gulley made quite a reputation for himself in Negro baseball circles of this area while skipper of the All-Stars last year in winning 45 games and losing only eight.

The Globe Trotters will come here with a string of four straight wins over Natchitoches, Shreveport and Opelousas Negro outfits, but Gulley boasts the Royals are ready to spoil that record.

The probable lineup for the Royals was announced last night as Willis, left field; Gulley, right field; McHenry, first base; Martin, center field; Livingston, shortstop; Johnson, third base; Carpenter, second base; Treadway, catcher; and Robinson, pitcher.

BILL JONES SETS NEW TALLULAH LINKS MARK

Jones' best hole was an eagle two on the par four No. 6. He bettered par on every hole except the fourth and ninth during a round with a foursome that included "Buddy" Lee, Dr. Sam Provine, and Tobe Jordon.

PATTERSON MAKING WAY AT COLUMBUS

West Monroe today is following the exploits of another major league pitching prospect as closely as diamond fans of this area kept up with West Monroe's Eddie Head during Ed's stay with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The newest pitching sensation is Alex Patterson who is setting the American Association on fire and seems destined for a career in the majors. Patterson, who makes his home with a brother, A. G. Patterson, Arkansas road, when not playing baseball, is currently the hurling mainstay of the Columbus, Ohio, Red Birds.

Patterson, experiencing his second year in professional ball, has appeared in nine games with the Red Birds so far this season. He has been credited with seven victories and has yet to experience defeat.

The current leading pitcher of the American Association, Patterson has registered wins over Toledo, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, and Louisville, the latter two clubs falling before Patterson's offerings on two occasions. When he beats St. Paul and Indianapolis he can boast of having beaten everything in the circuit.

A report from Columbus on Patterson's record shows he has pitched 49 2-3 innings, allowing 77 hits, mostly singles, issued 27 bases on balls, struck out 12, hit three batters, and watched 33 runs cross the plate. He has seen to it that 62 runners were left stranded.

While West Monroe and Ouachita parish may be just waking up to the possibilities of another major leaguer, Farmerville and Union parish have been following him for some time. Patterson formerly lived at Farmerville and came to West Monroe only two years ago with his brother. He formerly pitched for St. Joseph in the Western Association where he won 15 and lost eight.

OLE MISS REBS SIGN FOR NEW YEAR'S APPEARANCE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 14.—(AP)—The University of Mississippi today signed a contract to appear here as the host team in a New Year's Day football game, the sponsoring Amvets announced.

No opponent has been selected for the Rebels, but one must be picked by Nov. 1. Arrangements already have been made to hold a contest at Crump stadium.

Amvets Commander Dick Dewey said "we feel that we're lucky in having Ole Miss, and we mean to have a first-class foe for the Rebs."

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, June 14.—(NEA)—Clyde Milan was speaking of Joe DiMaggio's grace in the outfield and the extraordinary break the Yankee Clipper gets on a fly ball.

"How often," asked the weather-beaten little coach of the Senators, "do you see DiMaggio making a one-handed catch?"

No one present could recall having seen DiMag make one.

"In my judgment what Jimmy McAleer used to say is still substantially correct," said Milan, who was quite a centerfielder for the Washington club and an even better baserunner. "McAleer boasted that he was such an expert judge of a ball that he never had to make a one-handed catch."

McAleer, who managed the Browns with the formation of the American League and later the Senators, was the slickest fly-chaser of his time.

"Nearly every one-handed catch is caused by the misjudging of the ball," he contended.

Milan made McAleer change his mind, at least demonstrated that there were exceptions that proved the rule.

"One afternoon in 1910, Terry Turner of the Cleveland club hit a ball viciously and on a line into right centerfield," he explained. "I tore after the ball, stuck up my gloved hand. The ball stuck in the webbing of the glove. The stab saved the game, which was all that bothered me at the moment.

"Back on the bench, McAleer edged over, and with an exposive grin on his face, boomed: 'I want to shake hands with an outfielder who made a catch I would not have made.'

"I asked the manager: 'How come?' His reply was that it was the only legitimate one-handed catch he ever saw. I had judged the ball perfectly. He said he would have tried to catch the ball with two hands, with the result that he would have been a little short of reach."

So, you see, while some outfielders make catches appear more difficult than others, one-handed catches are not always the result of players misjudging the ball or going showboat.

Sometimes they have to do next to the impossible.

It is on those rare occasions when one hand is better than two.

Notables are gathering in Portsmouth, Va., June 16, to celebrate Frank D. Lawrence's 40th anniversary in banking and baseball.

Lawrence was a kid sports writer on the Portsmouth Star, left to be a bank runner at $5 a week, which was $2 more than he was being paid as an aspiring journalist. He broke into baseball as a scoreboard boy running general errands.

Now he is president of the bank and owns the Portsmouth club of the Class B Piedmont League, which he housed in one of the most modern and niftiest parks in the country.

There are to be luncheons and dinners and a free game at night. Among those present will be Sen. Harry F. Byrd; Gov. William Tuck; former governor Colgate Darden, now president of the University of Virginia; Frank M. Totten, vice-president of New York's Chase National Bank; Commissioner of Baseball Happy Chandler; George M. Trautman, head of the minor leagues, and general manager Jim Gallagher of the Chicago Cubs.

Portsmouth may be in a minor league city, but it has a big league owner.

YANKEES PLAN BASEBALL TRYOUTS FOR BOGALUSA

BOGALUSA, La., June 14.—(AP)—Burleigh Grimes, former Brooklyn and Yankee spit-ball pitcher, will be in charge of the New York Yankees tryout camp here June 30 and July 1.

Grimes will be assisted by Wattie Holm, former Cardinal outfielder, and Atley Donald a Yankee scout.

All boys between 16 and 22 interested in trying out for professional ball were urged to report to the Bogalusa baseball park June 30. The tryouts here will follow a similar camp at Monroe.

'STINGER' STEELE WILL FACE CRAIG FOR STATE TITLE

Belkas In Mat Semi-Final With Tommy Ward Here Tuesday Night

Jack "Stinger" Steele, the Sioux City super-villain who is on the trail of Jack Curtis and the world's light heavyweight championship crown he once wore, will settle for the time being for the Louisiana light-heavy belt, providing he can take it from George Craig.

Promoter Gus Kallio last night announced Steele would be given a chance to lift Craig's crown in the main event of Tuesday night's mat show at his Walnut street arena.

Craig, a two-time holder of the state belt which he reclaimed only last week from Chris Belkas, has been having fairly easy matches during his appearances here compared to what he can expect to run into against Steele.

The Iowa bruiser showed something of what Craig can be expecting when he mauled Indio Yaqui, Sonora Indian of Mexico, into submission here last Tuesday night in a match that aroused the fans to the point of almost attacking the Sioux City bad man and incited their ire against Referee Bill Barney for what they figured the ring official should not have permitted to happen.

"You are going to have a rough customer on your hands," Kallio warned Craig.

But the state champion replied, "I don't care. I'll hold the belt as long as I can, and that will be about as long as anybody else had been able to."

The state title has been passed around freely since it was first authorized last February, and the longest any one has held it has been three weeks by Allen "Sailor" Parker.

Steele and Craig will meet over a 90-minute time limit distance with two falls to win.

Efforts were made to rematch Steele with Indio Yaqui after their ruckus last week, with the customers themselves doing most of the howling for a return engagement to give the Indian a chance to even the score with Steele.

Kallio threatened to hold up the purse until Commissioner Dave Silverstein could review the happenings in the Steele-Yaqui match, but Steele had his eye on the title scramble and finally agreed to a 50-50 split on last week's purse with the Indian to avoid the tie-up. Kallio last night said he still hoped to rematch Steele and Indio Yaqui at a latter date.

Chris Belkas, dethroned by Craig last week, will be back Tuesday for an appearance in the semi-final event against Tommy Ward, the classy light-heavy from Atlanta, Ga.

It will make the first showing here for Ward in several weeks. The semi-final scramble, due to start at 8:30 o'clock, will have an hour time limit with two falls to win.

MAKING DOG'S LIFE EASY WILL PAY OFF

As a stimulus to research calculated to help make "a dog's life" a better life, the directors of National Dog Week, Inc., have set up a trust fund from which an award of $2,000 will be granted annually beginning next year.

The award, and a medal of honor, will be given to "the person or persons who contribute in an outstanding measure to the welfare of dogs," through research, and the winner will be announced by May 1 each year.

C. M. Olson of Chicago, president of National Dog Week, Inc., for 1947, has announced a jury of five distinguished educators and health officials who will select the first winner. They are: Dr. C. A. Elvehjem, dean of the graduate school of the University of Wisconsin; Dr. A. C. Ivy, vice-president of the University of Illinois; Dr. James H. Steele, chief of the veterinary public health section of the United States public health service; Dr. Carl F. Schlotthauer of the Mayo Foundation; Dr. W. A. Young, managing director of the Anti-Cruelty Society, of Chicago.

The award is not limited to research experts who devote themselves to dog welfare. Pointing out that animals often benefit indirectly by research on human problems, Mr. Olson explains, "Such research shall qualify the principals for this award when it is evaluated and reported on its benefit to the dog."

Olson expressed hope that the award will help to solve many of the medical problems that now vex dog owners and veterinarians, particularly in the following fields.

Rabies elimination through development of an efficient vaccine; canine distemper control with specific reference to nervous system sequels; non-parasitic skin diseases; prevention and curative treatment of leptospirosis; eradication and curative procedure for demodectic or red mange; development of an efficient and safe parasititicide for whipworm; Endocrine disfunctions; blood pathologies, anemia, lukemia and lukemoid condition.

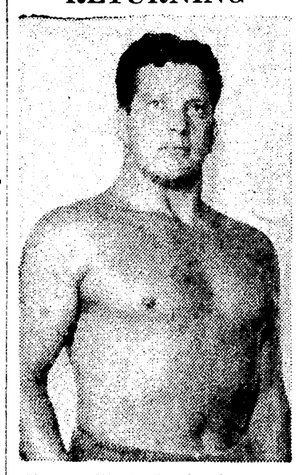
As a 1947 feature, the establishment of the search award program this year will help mark the 20th anniversary of the founding of National Dog Week, now held annually during the month of September. This year the week will open September 21.

MINIATURE RACING CAR CLUB HAS SHOW TODAY

The Louisiana Miniature Race Car Club at Monroe, having postponed its scheduled exhibition races last Sunday because of a conflict with the first annual Louisiana Water Carnival here, will hold the events today instead from 2 until 5 p. m., at the club's speedway at Lakeside Country Club.

Attendance prizes, a pair of the little racing cars used by the club members at their events, will be given away to some spectators at today's event it has been announced. The show is open to the public and everyone attending will have an opportunity to try for one of the little automobile awards.

RETURNING



Tommy Ward, the handsome Atlanta, Ga., grappler who made quite a "hit" with wrestling fans here early in the spring, returns to Monroe Tuesday night for a semi-final engagement at Gus Kallio's Arena with Chris Belkas, recently dethroned Louisiana state light heavyweight champ. Main event on the night's card will bring together George Craig, state titalist, and Jack "Stinger" Steele in a brawl for the Louisiana lgiht-heavy belt.

AIRCRAFT CLUB PLANNING MEET

Model Ships Will Vie For Valuable Awards In Event Here July 13

The Monroe Model Aircraft Club will conduct its first annual meet here Sunday, July 13, with the Exchange Club acting as the sponsoring adult organization, it was announced yesterday.

Jac Combs, president of the model aircraft organization, yesterday said the meet would be divided into three age groups, the first for members up to 14 years old, the second for members from 14 to 18, and the third for those 18 years old and older. Two main events will be offered for performing ships and speed planes.

Awards worth more than $350 will be offered first, second, and third place winners in the main events.

The aircraft club members are already busy preparing their ships for the events, and many have top performance planes capable of speeds of over 100 miles per hour. Others will exhibit planes adept at executing loops, power dives, and spot landings.

Two scale model planes will also be exhibited for the consideration of model airplane fans. They are a two-motor DC-3 powered by two Cyclones, and a remote control DeHavline Mosquito powered by two Ohlssons. Both planes are actual replicas of actual servicable ships.

Club member displayed quite a number of their planes at their Friday night meeting. The planes included a stunt ship by Thomas "Otto" Elioff, speed ships by Bob Clay and Stanley Hodges, performing ships by Tommy Mingledorff and Staton Huey, and speed planes by Combs, Vincent and Beville. These and many others of the ships owned by the club's members will be put on display in show windows of downtown business houses within the next few days.

Regular exhibition flying will be held this afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, on the club's field, and the exhibits are open to the public.

The club is also planning the organization of a Junior Aircraft Club for boy model builders. This club will be known for the younger boys interested in building solid and rubber-powered models only.

SUSAN ROGERS TRIUMPHS IN MISSISSIPPI AMATEUR

GREENWOOD, Miss., June 14.—(AP)—Miss Susan Rogers of Greenwood defeated Mrs. Arthur Bruce of Greenwood, 6 and 5, today to become Mississippi's new amateur woman's golf champion.

Miss Rogers, a former Wave, was out in front all the way in the gruelling 36-hole grind over the Greenwood Country Club's tricky course. The 24-year-old Greenwood City champion was straight and long off the tees and was seldom in trouble. Her approach shots and putting were consistently sound and on the few occasions she got into tight spots her recoveries were cool.

Mrs. Bruce, a former state champion, had less success with her approaches and putting and therein lay the difference and the championship.

SHREVEPORT CLUB PLAYS HERE TODAY

The Queensborough Cardinals of Shreveport, current leaders of American Legion Junior baseball in their own district, invade Monroe today for an exhibition clash with Monroe-West Monroe at 2:30 o'clock on the Neville High School diamond.

Manager Pete Medak, whose boys have won three and lost as many in the Fifth District race, yesterday indicated he might try some lineup revisions against the Cardinals to see how his club operates before swinging back into league competition at Farmerville Tuesday.

Followers of the Monroe-West Monroe team have had their hopes of another district titled team dimmed by two losses to Ruston and one to Bastrop, but they feel the locals still have a chance if they can knock off the opposition the rest of the way.

Monroe-West Monroe has been the only team to defeat Farmerville so far this season, and another reverse for the Farmers Tuesday would be a big help to Medak's boys.

SPATS DEFEATED BY JOHNNY RUSH

Alexandria Softball Team Rolls On Unbeaten With 10-5 Win

The Johnny Rush softball team of Alexandria, undefeated this season, scored its 21st triumph here last night at the expense of Spatafora's Pharmacy, leaders of the Monroe City League, in a game played at the Barkdull Faulk diamond before the largest crowd ever to witness a softball contest here. The Alexandria team won by a 10-5 score.

While Ollie Childs, ace of the Alexandria mound corps, was holding the Spats to three hits, the invaders were being limited to seven safe blows by Joe Kilcoyne. But the Spatafora chunker was wild, and the even dozen bases on balls he handed out contributed greatly to his downfall.

Kirby St. Romain, Alexandria first baseman, was the outstanding hitter of the game, getting two home runs in two official trips to the plate. Childs got two hits in three times at bat. No Spatafora player got more than one hit, but Manager Ralph Marionneaux, entering the game in the sixth inning, hit safely once and drew a base on balls.

Manager Marionneaux announced last night that the game for Spatafora at New Orleans next Sunday had been cancelled, but that the Spats would be playing the leaders of the Baton Rouge league in Baton Rouge Saturday.

Score by innings:
Johnny Rush ..... 013 020 4—10
Spatafora's ..... 000 001 4— 5

HOMETOWN RIVALS EVEN 2-GAME BASEBALL SERIES

JONESVILLE, La., June 14.—(Special)—Avenging a previous defeat at the hands of their younger adversaries, the Jonesville American Legion Juniors took no mercy on the Jonesville Baby Lions Wednesday night as they pounded out a 20-6 victory.

The game was played under the lights on the Block High School diamond. Last week, the Lions trounced the Legion lads, 19-14.

Three Baby Lion hurlers were used by the Legion to "even up" the contest. They were Arthur Boatner Swayze. Lefty Bud LaPrarie and Sonny Davis. Billy Davis, a southpaw, did all the mound chores for the Lions with the exception of an inning and two-thirds stint by Bud Wilson.

The Lions outhit the Legion boys, 9-8.

McGuire Pro Will Open Free Classes For Twin Cities' Boys Tuesday

With hopes of developing young golf stars to bring future credit to Monroe and West Monroe, Johnny Myers, energetic pro at McGuire Park Golf Club, is undertaking the responsibility of giving free instructions to all youths under 20 years of age who would like to learn the finer points of golf.

Myers announced last night that he would hold his first free class for prospective young golfers at McGuire Tuesday morning, beginning at 9 o'clock, and classes will continue thereafter each Tuesday morning with the "school" to be topped off with a tournament in which Myers' students will participate.

A team of 18 Ruston golfers will invade West Monroe today for an intercity match with members of the McGuire Park Club, beginning at 2 o'clock over the McGuire layout.

The No. 1 members of the contending teams will be Jimmy Davis, amateur, and Larry Williams, pro, Ruston against Bill Jones, amateur, McGuire, and Johnny Myers, pro.

Twenty-two youngsters have already registered for the free instruction, and Myers last night said that any others desiring to participate were welcome to join.

"Right now Monroe and West Monroe have no young golfers coming up like Ben Downing Jr., Dickie Touchstone, and Bobby Oliver, the boys who became golfing standouts before the war," Myers declared. "I believe the planned classes will go a long way toward interesting other young fellows in the sport and gaining for some of them golfing recognition they otherwise might not attain."

Already registered for the classes are Billy Eyre, Clyde Albritton, Herbert Spencer, J. Y. Pipes, Jr., Edell Blanks, Jackie Doss, Bobby Ledbetter, Jerry Hightower, Lynn Meredith, Sam Brothers, Charles Reid, Jack Rickerson, Johnny Webb, A. C. Lingofelter, Johnny Wooten, Judge Davis, Roy Hicks, Stewart Scott, Courtney Cliver, Bud Marx, Almyer Montgomery, and Jack Baugh.

When Pro Myers feels the boys have all had advantage of the necessary instruction, an 18-hole tournament will be arranged with prizes for winners.

"We of McGuire Park want every boy to feel that this is his program. It costs nothing, and any boy can take advantage of the opportunity," Myers declared.

KENTUCKY DERBY CHIEF RALLIES FROM ILLNESS

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP)—The condition of Col. Matt J. Winn, 85, impresario of the Kentucky Derby for the past 45 years, alarmed his thousands of friends throughout the nation today.

Col. Winn, suffering from a severe cold and 102 temperature, was removed from his hotel suite to St. Luke's hospital last night, principally as a precautionary measure.

His physician, Dr. Thomas J. Coogan, said Col. Winn's temperature had returned to normal today and that there were "no finds" of pneumonia as earlier feared.

However, hospital attendants warned that "he is a very elderly man and that caution should prevail in his case. He is resting comfortably but may not be allowed to leave the hospital for another week."

JENA, OLLA SCRAP FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Tigers Invade Oilers Today, Winnsboro At Oak Grove, Clarks At Columbia

The leadership of the North Louisiana League will be high stakes today at Jena when the league-leading LaSalle Oilers play host to the invading Olla Tigers who trail Jena by half a game in the standings.

A Jena win today would strengthen the position of Manager Babe Benning's Oilers, while a reverse would send Manager E. C. Hinton's Bengals out in front.

Other league games today can also have important bearings on the outcome of the title chase with Columbia jockeying with Clarks for a place in the first division and a playoff slot, and Winnsboro's meeting Oak Grove in hopes of overhauling either Jena or Olla.

Manager E. M. Steely's Clarks Lumberjacks, holding fourth place by a single game over the Columbia Ramblers, will be in Columbia today, and the Ramblers, guided by Manager Ray Spicer, can go into a tie for fourth if they succeed in downing the 'Jacks.

Oak Grove will be playing host to the Winnsboro Red Sox this afternoon and a possible Oak Grove victory could muff Winnsboro's chances of a climb. By beating Oak Grove, Winnsboro could be sure of second place if Olla lost to Jena or a tie for second if Jena is beaten.

Ferriday is idle today but will go after the Olla Tigers at Olla on Wednesday when Winnsboro goes to Clarks and Oak Grove to Jena.

ON TRUST HOME FIRST IN WILL ROGERS 'CAP

INGLEWOOD, Calif., June 14.—(AP)—California-bred On Trust captured the $25,000 Will Rogers Handicap at Hollywood Park today over 12 rivals three-year-olds, with Handlebars a surprise second and Sullivan third in a hotly contested seven furlong race before 39,435 fans.

Jockey Johnny Longden aboard on Trust walked off with both sides of the day's two big features, having ridden Mrs. John D. Hertz' Nursery School in to win the $25,000 Lassie Stakes for two-year-old fillies in the fifth race on the program.

The favored On Trust, taking command in the stretch, had to get up and move to win by neck as Handlebars, a surprise, came with a rush in the final yards.

The winner paid $3.60, $3.10 and $2.60; Handlebars $10.70 and $5.60, and Sulivan $4.40. The time was 1:22 3/5.

PHALANX OUTRUNS TEXAS FILLY FOR DWYER PAYCHECK

But Why Not Nosed Out By Virginian; Brabacon Finishes Third

NEW YORK, June 14.—The Gentleman From Virginia, stretch-flying Phalanx, moved out in front in the tussle for three-year old honors today by just managing to win the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct but only after he got the scare of his life from the only "lady" in the race.

Her name is But Why Not, and apparently she was asking herself that question as she charged past the eight boys in the last half mile of this mile and a quarter test and did everything but win the $40,800 pot in her first start against colts.

The 35,729 custimers who backed Phalanx down to $3.70 for $2 held their breath as the Virginian and the Texas-owned glamor gal battled it out all the way up Aqueduct's long stretch, Ruperto Donoso, the riding Chilean who replaced Eddie Arcaro as Phalanx's pilot three weeks ago, finally got the colt in front just before the finish. At the wire, the front pair had six lengths on the wearying Brabancon, and he was a length and a half out in front of Tailspin, who also was fading badly after battling Brabancon and Jobstown for first in the early going.

Jobston, winner of the Absecon Handicap at Atlantic City only a week ago, sagged to seventh.

The Dwyer is the race in which Man-O-War not only whipped John P. Grier, but broke John's heart, back in 1920, in one of Big Red's greatest gallops. And today's defeat for the filly stablemate of Assault, who won the Dwyer last year for the King Ranch of Texas, was a heartbreaker, too.

Phalanx, of course, was no man O' War in this one. His 2:05 4/5 time was the second slowest Dwyer of them all. Carrying the top load of 126, he stayed well back through the first three quarters. He sent in front of But Why Not rounding the stretch turn and she took the lead right back until just three jumps from the wire.

The $40,800 he picked up today boosted his earnings for the year to $174,525 and zipped his bankroll to $231,635 for his two seasons of stepping.

Feazel wells, but the depth of the hole is greater than that of the others because its location is on a hill.

Completion of the Feazel well was expected today and the official gauge by district conservation department inspectors probably will be made Monday. The prediction was made that the Neva Norris No. 1 would have the strongest flow of the three successful wells. Its owners are F. Boyken King of Homer and H. C. McCallum of Shreveport.

Claude Bagley of Shreveport, who drilled the Sellars and Feazel wells was building a derrick yesterday at the Futch No. 1 location on a three-acre tract owned by the W. A. Futch estate, two miles northwest of the proven portion of the new field.

New locations made in the Ora field area during the week were the R. O. Smith Company's Perry Futch No. 1 on a six-acre tract two miles west and slightly north of the discovery well, and the Marine Oil Company's Monzingo-Rivers Lumber Co. 1 in the west offset and 660 feet from the first producer. The Marine Company set surface pipe yesterday. The Roberts & Smith Company was reported last evening to have spudded in for its Farmers' Mercantile Co. No. 1 in section 23-22-1W. "Drilling at 6,700 feet," was the conservation office's only report Saturday on the T. L. James Company's G. H. Miller No. 1, five miles east of Spearville, which was said earlier in the week to have encountered 40 feet of distillate sand.

Ignored or forgotten by speculators as announcement of the third producer set off a new wave of leasing and royalty dealing was the Union parish oil boom's first disappointment—the dry hole drilled by C. H. Murphy, Jr., discoverer of the Delhi field. His wildcat Bergeron estate No. 1, two miles northeast of Farmerville, apparently was outside the Ora pool and was abandoned at 3,900 feet on June 6.

Ouachita parish's only active oil test, Roy L. Fisher's Primos-Gratz No. 1, south of Monroe, was still held up yesterday as attempts continued to retrieve tools wedged at 2,544 feet in the 5,984-foot hole. The Union Producing Company's fee 152 No. 1, three miles northeast of Monroe, a deep test that was plugged back to the gas rock, was completed last Monday with an estimated flow of 1,743,000 cubic feet of gas per day before acid.

Drilling was begun last evening on Mitchell & Anderson's wildcat well on the 3,100-acre plantation of Dr. A. D. Tisdale of Monroe and E. H. Myrick in Richland parish, 1 1/2 miles south of Crew Lake and 12 miles east of Monroe.

New locations in the Monroe district during the week included three other wildcats—the Murphy-Sun Company's West Virginia Co. No. 1 in section 32-16-8E in Franklin parish, six miles east and a half-mile north of Mangham; the same company's H. L. Kennedy No. 1 in section 19-16-10E in Richland parish, seven miles south of Delhi, and the L. W. Dennis et al. John L. Tatum No. 1, one mile north of the Delhi field and six miles west of Delhi.

A permit to drill a twin to its Ratcliff No. 2 well in section 7-16-8E in the Big Creek field in Richland parish was obtained by the James E. Kemp Company. A Richland abandonment during the week was the Gulf Refining Company's Prudential Insurance Co., F-2 at north edge of the Delhi field, four miles west of Delhi a mile south of the I. C. Railroad.

U. S. airlines carried more than 13 million passengers in 1946, almost double their 1945 load.

PLANE CRASH

readily extricated to the top of the slope which the plane barely missed clearing. The terrain was so bad that they had to work in teams of four.

Stone, of Vienna, Va., is assistant national administrator for the Red Cross disaster relief service.

He said the victims "must have been quite unaware that anything was going to happen—and unaware when it did happen."

Julian Brooks of Alexandria, Va., a field agent for the Red Cross, said plans are to use a bulldozer to cut a path through rocks and trees so as to bring out the dead.

L. T. Easley, another Associated Press reporter on the scene, wrote that the liner appears to have crashed so hard and to have burned so fiercely that half the bodies may never be fully identified. Scattered about, he reported, "lie the possessions they kept closest to them in their last flight—brief cases, women's handbags, notebooks, a few items of clothing, mostly charred."

Ground parties had to toil through mud and underbrush for weary hours to reach the scene of the crash, just across the border in West Virginia, after the wreckage had been located from the air.

James M. Franklin, airlin maintenance director who was one of those first spotting the debris, told newsmen that "it must have been a pretty terrific explosion."

The official word of "no survivors" came shortly before 5 p. m. (EST) from James W. Austin, general traffic manager of the airline in Washington, after the ground parties finally had made their way to the spot.

The first grim word that all were dead was relayed by Hayes Dever, an airline official here, who quoted Gordon Stone, a Red Cross worker described as the first man at the wreckage.

Another of the first arrivals, Sculter Allen of Charlestown, W. Va., said 15 bodies were thrown clear of the wreckage but that it appeared all aboard had died instantly.

Stone reported to Red Cross headquarters in Washington that the scene is six or seven miles south of Charles Town and that the plane appeared to have plowed into the mountain while in level flight.

The low mountain was the last one on the plane's course from Chicago to Washington. It could have cleared the crest had it been 100 feet higher.

Tersely, Stone reported: "There is evidence of burning. No survivors."

The air line set crews to work to cutting an improvised road to the spot from a country road a mile and a half away behind the mountain to bring out the bodies of the 47 passengers and three crew members. An emergency morgue was set up in a little chapel here.

Franklin and J. H. Carmichael, executive vice president of the airline, were with Stone.

Efforts to reach the crashed plane from the ground were made extremely difficult by the ruggedness of the mountains and a driving rain that seldom let up.

Dever and Stone and other workers had gone as far as they could in a jeep—the only machine capable of coping with the oozy mud churned by searchers along primitive Blue Ridge mountain trails. They walked the rest of the way.

Aboard were:

A 17-year old girl, Margaret Keuppers of St. Paul, taking her first ride in an airplane as a graduation gift from her parents.

A 10-month old infant and the baby's mother, Mrs. Mary Bryan of Indianapolis.

A honeymooning couple, Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Marko of Cleveland.

The Pilot, Horace Stark, 46, of Washington, was an honored inventor of navigation aids to airmen, one of them the Star position finder. He was a veteran of 26 years and 2,500,000 miles of flying.

The plane was last heard from by radio at 6:13 p. m. (EST) last night over Martinsburg, W. Va., 65 miles and a matter of minutes from Washington, the destination of the flight from Chicago.

It was a DC-4 named the Capitaline Baltimore which went into commercial service a year ago tomorrow after conversion from military duty.

It was the same type, known to the army as the C-54, as those which were wrecked at La Guardia Field, N. Y. May 29 killing 42 persons and at Porter Deposit, Md., May 30 killing 53.

Senator Brewster (R-ME), Chairman of the Senate Commerce subcommittee on Aviation, said in Washington he does not believe that engine failure can be blamed for any of the three crashes.

He expressed the view that structural failure appears responsible and said his committee's investigators will look into the crash near here.

After the New York and Maryland crashes, the army and navy both rechecked the tail assembly of the C-54's.

A single section of the tail assembly of the Capital Airlines plane stands like a sentinel amid the ashes and rubble of what only yesterday was a sleek luxury air cruiser.

Eugene B. Dodson, Associated Press reporter who viewed the scene from the air, reported:

"As we flew by, barely 50 yards away, it appeared impossible that any of the 47 passengers or crew of three could have survived.

"There was no sign of life in the area.

"The charred wreckage of the big four-engined plane was scattered some 200 yards through a thick second growth of scrub trees. An area that long and some 40 yards wide was burned out."

Russian sources confirmed that Soviet Ambassador A. A. Petrov will be leaving for Moscow shortly and would report to the Kremlin, presumably on the incident.

(Meager dispatches failed to clarify the cause of the clashes Previous accounts had said the Lamas rose against the Chinese military after it arrested and put to death the pro-British leader of the Lamas. The British have trade interests in Tibet.)

BRUCE ACCEPTS BID TO ARGENTINE POST

BUENOS AIRES, June 14.—(AP)—The foreign office announced today it had accepted the designation of James C. Bruce as United States ambassador, succeeding George Messersmith. Bruce has been vice president of the National Dairy Association of Baltimore.

Foreign office sources said President Truman had not yet officially nominated Bruce but a request for Argentine opinion on the choice had arrived here several days ago.

The foreign office announcement said merely that the government approved the selection. Messersmith will leave Buenos Aires June 20.

WELFARE GROUP GETS BRANDED WITH RED TAG

Southern Conference Organization Called Camouflaged Communist Front

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—The House committee on un-American activities hung a red tag tonight on the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as "perhaps the most deviously camouflaged Communist front organiaztion."

In an official report to the House, the committee linked with the conference in various capacities such well-known names as Henry A. Wallace, Melvyn Douglas, Mrs. Marshall Field, Harold L. Ickes, Joseph E. Davies, Dorothy Parker and Paul Robeson.

The reports said some "well-intentioned persons were mis-led into joining" the organization early in its history and many, but not these, since have repudiated it.

The conference itself, and the prominent persons named by the committee, previously have denied any Communist affiliations. Conference officials have protested that the committee's report was issued without giving them a hearing.

The committee released its report in advance of a speech which Wallace is to deliver here Monday night under conference auspices. The committee already has announced plans to have "observers" at this meeting.

The American anti-Communist association has asked federal district court to order Secretary of the Interior Krug to cancel a permit for the affair at the Watergate amphitheater—owned by the government. The association cited among other things a previous listing of the conference as a Communist front by the un-American activities committee.

The committee summed up its findings on the conference thus:

"1. It shows unswerving loyalty to the basic principles of Soviet foreign policy.

"2. It has consistently refused to take sharp issue with the activities and policies of either the Communist party, U. S. A., or the Soviet Union.

"3. It has maintained in decisive posts persons who have the confidence of the Communist press.

"4. It has displayed consistent anti-American bias and pro-Soviet bias, despite professions, in generalities, of love for America."

A list of conference officers for 1947-48 in the report includes Wallace, Douglas and Mrs. Field among "advisory associates," without identifying them further.

Also without further identification, the names of Ickes, Davies, Miss Parker and Robeson are in a table listing the names and positions of 62 people as connected with the conference as officials, sponsors, editors or speakers.

Wallace is down for "May 29, 1947" under "statement defending Communist Party"; for "American Committee for Protection of Foreign-born and "American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom" under organizations defending Communists; and for "American Russian Institute" under pro-Soviet relief or propaganda organizations.

The report is based largely on a study of publications and activities of the organization, and on quotations from its officials and publications and from Communists and Communist publications. It has been in preparation two months and was adopted unanimously by the committee on Thursday.

The report says that Dr. Clark Foreman of Atlanta, president of the conference, "has no open affiliation with the Communist party."

"He has been most successful," it adds, "in confusing the people as to the Communist-front character of the x x x conference x x x."

It says almost every page of his book, "The New Internationalism," reflects "sympathies" with the "international Communist movement."

"Foreman," the committee says, "is associated with the progressive citizens of America, an allegedly liberal organization which believes in cooperating with Communists."

"He has also been affiliated with the following Communist-front groups: the Win-the-Peace conference; the Washington committee for Democratic Action, which defended Communist cases before the United States Civil Service commission; and the National Citizens Political Action committee."

The report lists Dr. Frank P. Graham, "head of the University of North Carolina," as first chairman and now honorary president of the conference. It says Graham "is not a Communist" but is "one of those liberals who show a predilection for affiliation to various Communist-inspired front organizations."

Dipping into the organization's history, the report says its origin is "extraordinarily vague" but it began in 1938.

"Evidence before our committee indicates," the report says, "that the central committee of the Communist party was intimately concerned with the affairs of the conference from its very inception."

But the committee says "the most conclusive proof of the Communist domination" of the conference is in its "strict and unvarying conformance to the line of the Communist party in the field of foreign policy."

The report parallels shifts in the party line with conference actions.

When the Communists demanded an "uncompromising peace policy" following the German-Russian nonaggression pact, the report says, conference delegates in 1940 "denounced war and pro-Allied propaganda as threatening America with war."

and refuge to guerrilla forces operating in northern Greece."

Ethridge's comment on the charges, which were submitted in a letter to Lie by Yugoslav Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovic, was "nuts." The American representative pointed out, however, that the commission in its report said approximately the same thing, by a vote of 8 to 2.

The security council is scheduled to meet a week from Monday to consider the report which held Kugoslavia primarily responsible for supporting the Greek guerrillas and held Albania and Bulgaria blameworthy to a lesser degree.

Most delegates expected a showdown fight between Russia and the western powers when the report is submitted.

Meanwhile, the Balkan commission prepared to meet Monday to see how it can assist the security council during discussion of the explosive issue.

At the end of a week of new attempts to reconcile American and Russian views, both the atomic energy commission and the commission on conventional armaments remained deadlocked on plans for tackling the two issues.

Russia warned that the armaments commission might fail in its assigned task unless it accepts a Soviet demand to link the atomic control problem with arms limitation.

The atomic energy commission's working committee scheduled another meeting for Tuesday in another effort to reconcile Russian and American views on an international system for atomic control.

Russia is insisting that atomic weapons must be outlawed before any control system is established. The United States insists that prohibition of atomic weapons and atomic energy controls must be put into effect simultaneously.

American and Russian differences also have bogged down progress on establishment of a global police force. The security council is scheduled to meet Monday afternoon to tackle the problem again.

WESTERN WANDERER

Earl Brumfield and his daughter hold an armadillo found on the Brumfield farm six miles west of Monroe Friday morning. The animal, apparently from Texas or New Mexico, was heading eastward when Brumfield warily stopped its journey with a bushel basket.

Shy, Horny Fugitive Evokes Astonishment And Delight Throughout City

Escaping from the wilderness of western Texas or New Mexico, a nine-banded armadillo penetrated into north Louisiana Friday morning and at sun up was found on the farm of Earl Brumfield, six miles west of West Monroe, making considerable speed eastward.

Brumfield observing the animal which was the first he had ever observed in this area, was astonished and also a bit wary about exposing himself to the creature. He captured it with a bushel basket.

It was perfectly formed and its horny body was about a foot across and with a tail of the same extended dimension.

Brumfield, father of three small daughters, found that the children were as pleased as he was over the discovery. He brought it in a car to the vicinity of the News-Star—World, where it was duly admired by members of the staff and had its picture taken.

Residents of this are stated that in the last two decades about three of the animals have been found in the vicinity of Monroe, how they came and where they are bound is a mystery.

Brumfield was undecided as to what to do with the animal.

ily in those areas and via those media not open to private channels or not profitable to them. If and as private agencies develop in these areas and media, the government should withdraw."

Benton wrote that Cooper's "speech contains numerous specific misconceptions and misleading statements" and continued:

"As you use the word 'propaganda' throughout your speech to describe the informational activities of the state department, you are prejudging the question by raising associations of dishonesty, malice and evil intent. • • •

"In your sense I deny—flatly and categorically—that the department of state is engaged in propaganda. No responsible newspaperman who has taken the trouble to study the department's operation has so described it. • • •

"You say that 'all countries of any importance actually avail themselves' of the news reports of the United States wire services. The fact is that a number of countries either do not get these reports or process them beyond all recognition. Hungary, Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia and Iran, among others, get no reports. The Soviet Tass agency gets the AP report, but I am sure you agree with me that Russian newspapers cannot, even in the most farfetched sense, be said to have 'AP service.' • • •

"You refer to the government as being in the 'news agency business,' yet you concede that the state department's information program is not regarded by the wire services as being competitive. Thus your use of the phrase 'news agency business.'

"You say that the American people have no way of checking up on what the state department is saying abroad 'that might lead us all to catastrophe.' In saying this, you under-rate the rigid policing provided by our listeners and readers. You under-rate Congress. You under-rate your own staff both here and abroad. You under-rate the thousands of American businessmen living abroad, and those serving in our missions. It is all on the record."

Yalta for politically free governments in the Balkans.

"Such governments do not exist today in those three countries," the President said.

He noted that the establishment of peace with them will mean withdrawal of all occupation forces and the end of Big Three control commission provided under the armistice.

American officials hope the withdrawal of Soviet troops and the end of occupation control will give non-Communist elements greater freedom of action even though the Soviets will be allowed to keep troops in Romania and Hungary to maintain communications with their forces in Austria.

FREIGHTER SAVES 32 ON MOTORSHIP

Swedish Vessel Burns At Sea 160 Miles East Of Bermuda; No Casualties

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—(AP)—Lykes Brothers Steamship company announced today that its freighter, the Matthew J. O'Brien, had rescued six passengers and 26 crew members from the burning Swedish motorship Lena Brodin, 60 miles east of Bermuda.

The company said that Captain E. B. Holdorf, Master of the Matthew J. O'Brien, reported no casualties.

Capt. Holdorf radioed that he had received an SOS message from the Swedish vessel and proceeded to the scene to find the Lena Brodin ablaze. The rescuing vessel removed the six passengers and stood by while the crew of the Swedish ship fought the blaze all night.

At daybreak, Capt. Holdorf said, the Swedish ship's crew abandoned the fight and came aboard his vessel. Capt. Holdorf sent a salvage crew aboard the burning ship and took it in tow but was forced to abandon salvage attempts 10 miles off Bermuda because of the flames.

The O'Brien is proceeding to New Orleans, the steamship company said, and is expected to reach the Gulf of Mexico late Monday.

FRENCH ARTIST

viction upon a sodomy charge carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

As he was brought into the jail, Refoule faced photographers with a frightened look upon his face.

Twice within the 12 hours immediately preceding his formal arrest, Refoule was interrogated under a lie detector about the murder of his 31-year-old wife. At the conclusion of the tests, Fulton County Police Chief Neal Ellis announced:

"We are not at all satisfied with Refoule's response to the lie detector questioning. The only time the apparatus indicated he told the truth was when he said "I did not love my wife."

The sodomy charge, Ellis said, was based on an answer under the lie detector of a young woman who formerly was a student of Refoule. The woman was questioned last night with another woman and a young man. All were released, but Ellis said the man would be questioned further.

Refoule, through his attorney, waived preliminary hearing on the sodomy charge and was ordered held with $10,000 bond.

Today's questioning was the third time police had grilled Refoule at length since his wife's semi-nude body was found face up in Peachtree Creek May 14. She had been strangled. Jewelry she normally wore was missing, and, after laboratory tests, police said she had been raped.

The creek runs in the rear of the studio home the Refoule's had converted from an old mill. With their son, Jon, 9, they had lived in the new home only nine days before the murder.

Refoule was taken by police at the Atlanta airport last night in a surprise move shortly after he had welcomed his parents, Judge and Mrs. Robert Refoule, from their home in Orleans, France.

Refoule was permitted a few minutes talk with his parents. Then police took him and the parents went to the home of Refoule's mother-in-law, Mrs. Ott Alston, the widow of a prominent Georgia attorney. The artist and his son have been staying with the mother-in-law since the murder. Refoule's parents were in seclusion today.

Young Refoule and his wife were married at a fashionable wedding here in 1937. They met while both were students at the Sorbonne in Paris. Friends described it as a perfect romance. For a time they lived in France. Then Peggy returned to the United States and war broke out. Paul entered the French army and was captured at Dunkirk. While he was a prisoner, she returned to France and lived with his parents. He escaped from a German camp in Poland and together they came back to the United States.

traffic problem through its narrowedness and almost constant congestion, but at this late day it would be an almost impossibility to remedy the problem. However business is creeping up both Second and Third streets and now if ever is the time to widen these thoroughfares, it would seem.

Mrs. Minnie Dakin had the misfortune to lose a billfold in which was $39 cash and valuable papers. She advertised her loss in the News-Star—World. Then, when she was fearful lest the loss was irreparable, a messenger boy appeared at her apartment, 129 1-2 South Grand street, and returned the billfold intact. He reported that it had been found by a teller in the Ouachita National bank who found it on a counter in the institution. Within he found the owner's name and saw that restitution was quickly made.

Mrs. A. R. Bryan, 2705 South Grand street, takes issue about the armadillo population hereabouts. She says that she believes there are plenty of them to be found. She states that in Sabine and DeSoto parishes they are as common as rabbits, and she knows for she used to live there. She gives this as an explanation: About 15 years ago, at a Sabine parish fair, there was on exhibit a pair of these creatures, which caused unusu' interest. At the close of the fair, they were turned loose. And may it not be, she visions, that all the many armadillos that are to be found in the northern part of the state are sons and daughters, uncles and aunts of the original pair that was exhibited at the Sabine fair??? And who knows after all??

The spinach plant, probably of Persian origin, was introduced into Europe about the 15th century.

JUDGE

reported that it was deadlocked. At 7:30 a. m. 4:30 p. m. Saturday it had informed Judge Brown of the impasse, but both times was asked by him to deliberate further.

Interest in the proceedings had dimmed considerably as the deadlock first became known, and the crowd which had overflowed the courtroom all during the trial was reduced to a handful when the jury's report was finally delivered.

First indications of the outcome were discerned Friday night when the jury was locked up for the night after Foreman Joe Kinsey reported its inability to arrive at any agreement.

Testimony in the case was concluded shortly after 10 a. m. Friday following the state's presentation of a rebuttal witness.

In his summation, the district attorney described Mrs. Stokes as the slayer of her sister-in-law Mrs. Dorene Garrett, in Garrison. He said she was a "cold-blooded killer who slipped into a home when the occupants were away and committed poison murder."

Describing her as a "liar and thief" Burke said he was not demanding the deathy penalty, but he was demanding that she be sent to the state penitentiary for a number of years "as a menace to society."

Defense Attorneys H. L. Edwards and A. W. Bell Sr., portrayed Mrs. Stokes as entirely innocent, and told the jury that no evidence linking her with the crime had been presented. They also asserted that she had been the victim of brutal treatment by arresting officers and that the purported confession had been obtained through "violent questioning."

The defense allegations were denied by Sheriff Hagan Parmley, Texas Ranger Dick Middleton, and Deputy Sheriff Roy Hargis who were recalled by the prosecution.

Rebuttal testimony Friday morning also included that of Mrs. Catherine Marshall, a secretary in the sheriff's office when Mrs. Stokes was first questioned. Mrs. Marshall declared that she heard the accused woman admit she had gone by the Garrett home at Garrison the morning of March 4 "to tend to some chickens." Previously Mrs. Stokes had denied the testimony of other state witnesses who reported she had been at the Garrett home the day a fatal dose of strychnine was emptied into a pitcher of milk.

Earlier in the trial the jury heard a report from an officer of the state health department that an autopsy on the dead woman disclosed "enough poison to kill 28 persons."

MARITIME STRIKE

New York today for a meeting of the CIO maritime committee. At a late hour today he had not appeared but these four other maritime union presidents were on hand:

Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union; Hugh Bryson, president of the Marine Cooks and Stewards, and Joseph P. Selly, president of the American Communications Association.

MEBA and the Longshoremen's unions have reached agreements with the Pacific American Shipowners Association to extend present contracts.

The 39 companies represented here are east and gulf coast operators. They conferred among themselves and also met with Curran and other union leaders to consider the NMU's demand for a new contract with a 20 per cent pay hike.

The Cooks and Stewards union and the ACA are asking continuance of present contracts.

Margolis planned continuous conciliation meetings among the various parties and despite the eleventh-hour nature of the discussions said he was "very hopeful."

If a strike resulted it would be coast-to-coast and would affect more than 100 American flagships in New York harbor alone.

West coast shipowners seemed confident of a last minute settlement in their contract talks with the ACA, marine cooks and the engineers.

However, one of the issues to hurdle in the west coast negotiations was the marine cooks' demand for an immediate wage review.

Wages for NMU members start at $159 a month for ordinary seamen. Able-bodied seamen, the largest single category, receive $183.50 while electricians get $294.

The wages of marine engineers range from $227.50 to $588 monthly.

JUKE BOX SAVES LIFE OF AIRLINES MECHANIC

LEESBURG, Va., June 14.—(AP)—Robert Quick, Arlington, Va., credited the noise from a juke box today with saving him from death in the Capital Airlines plane crash.

Quick is a mechanic with the airline. He was in Pittsburgh yesterday and was booked for a flight on the ill fated plane.

He told reporters he was getting a cup of coffee in the airport restaurant and the juke box was playing so loud he failed to hear the plane announced as ready for departure. He missed it.

Quick's home is 1367 S. 28th St., Arlington.

GUNS OILED BY REPUBLICANS FOR BLAST AT ECONOMY ISSUE

President To Act Monday On Tax Bill; Believe Measure Will Be Top Issue In 1948 Presidential Campaign

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Republicans oiled their guns today for a counter-blast at President Truman on the economy issue if he vetoes the tax reduction bill as many expect.

The White House announced that Mr. Truman will act Monday and will send a message to congress on the tax bill whether he vetoes it or signs it.

The expectation of a veto is so strong in congress that Republicans already are preparing to fire back at Mr. Truman in a controversy they believe will become a major issue of the 1948 presidential campaign.

Chairman Taft (Ohio) of the state senate GOP policy committee told a reporter the Republicans are prepared to answer a veto with the assertion that the president wants no tax reduction because he is unwilling to have federal expenditures cut.

"The government already has demonstrated that he is against economy in government," Taft declared. "He has resisted all efforts to reduce his swollen budget and has sabotaged, through the government departments, every attempt of congress to effect economies.

"His recent Kansas City speech showed that he favors every possible spending project. If he vetoes the tax bill, it will be because he fears that a tax reduction would force a retreachment in spending."

Chairman Taber (R.-N.Y.) of the House Appropriations committee expressed a similar view in declaring that the House GOP drive to cut Mr. Truman's budget by $6,000,000,000 "is a success."

"It's a great success despite the fact that we have had no help from the Democrats," Taber said in an interview. "All we have had from them in our honest efforts to cut down spending so we can save some of the taxpayers' money is a lot of criticism and cries of 'phony' every time we made a saving."

Savings on appropriations bills to date, Taber said, approximate $4,873,000,000 "and there are more to come."

Of that total, Democrats insist that close to $3,000,000,000 is "phony."

"When the last appropriation bill is passed by the House," said Rep. Gore of Tennessee, Democratic appropriations "bookkeeper," the Democrats "will be able to prove without question of a doubt that the vaunted Republican economy drive to cut $6,000,000,000 is a failure. It will be a failure even if we allow them credit for all the phony claims."

Rep. Grant (R.-Ind.) was one who predicted the president will sign the tax bill. He said in a statement that a veto "would in effect be a usurpation of the power of congress to levy taxes."

The bill would reduce income taxes by amounts ranging from 30 to 10.5 per cent starting July 1. The saving to taxpayers over a full year would be about $4,000,000,000.

If a veto is forthcoming, Democrats generally expect Mr. Truman to bear down on the contention that any possible surplus of federal revenues over expenditures in the year beginning July 1 must first be applied as payment on the national debt with tax cuts coming at a "proper" time later.

FRANCE CHECKS U. S. BANK PLAN

Secretary Marshall's Recovery Program Put Under Diplomatic Microscope

PARIS, June 14.—(AP)—France disclosed today that she has taken the first step to put U. S. Secretary of State Marshall's projected multi-billion dollar European recovery plan under a diplomatic microscope by asking Russia if she is willing to discuss the proposal.

At the same time it was announced that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin is expected in Paris Tuesday to spend two days in conferring on the "Marshall plan" for the United States to underwrite in large measure a coordinated plan for Europe's convalescence from war.

From the Hague, Holland, also came the announcement that Belgian, Netherlands and Luxembourg diplomats already have been holding consultations which have led to the expectation that these three countries will be very much in accord with the American plan for economic aid to Europe. The announcement said consultations took place within the framework of Benelux, the compact by which they have agreed to economic cooperation among themselves.

Significantly, it was an enthusiastic Bevin who took the initiative in arranging the Paris talks with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Premier Paul Remadier. Typically it was Bidault who, before accepting Bevin's proposal for a conference, cautiously asked Russia if she was willing to hold separate discussions with France on the subject.

Russia has not yet replied. Violent French Communist reaction to the Marshal plan came from the party's newspaper L'Humanite today, however. The paper said the plan was an economic cloak for American "political imperialism" and a perfecting of President Truman's interventionist system."

Marshall has said Russia could have a part in the plan.

There seemed little doubt but that the Bevin-Bidault talks heralded the shaping of concrete plans for meeting Marshall's conditions that Europe itself must come forward with a plan and suggestions for implementing a coordinated recovery program for the contingent as a whole.

Officially, however, French reaction has been limited to an expression that she is "tremendously interested" and a statement that Ambassador Henri Bonnet in Washington has been instructed to say as much and to ask for a "few clarifications."

The reason for this caution, it appeared, lies in France's complex political makeup in which the largest single group is the Communist party.

On the other hand, Bevin endorsed the general plan outspokenly in the House of Commons yesterday with the declaration that it was an offer by the United States to build a bridge linking "east and west."

The French foreign office said unofficial conversations between French and British economic experts already have been proceeding since Marshall first made his announcement. A spokesman said however that these experts had not yet got down to brass tacks, and that the Paris talks will be more of an exchange of general ideas than tackling of concrete details.

Foreign office sources were vague about the relation of the Marshall plan to France's own "Monnet plan" of industrial modernization which is intended to put 1950 production at 25 per cent above 1929.

The convention held on June 6 and 7 marked the first anniversary of the state department and was presided over by Mrs. Dolly Strobel of Covington, first president of the state auxiliary. Represented in the meetings were committees from New Orleans, St. Francisville, Covington, Shreveport, Baton Rouge and Monroe.

A twelve point program, as sustained by Father Sam Hill Ray, state and national chaplain, of the Amvets, was presented to the convention for its consideration and approval. The program, following closely the purposes of the Amvets, will direct the work of the state auxiliary for the coming year.

Monroe was represented by Mrs. Lucille Johnston and Mrs. Harold Breard, delegates, and Mrs. Tony Lewis, Miss Venyce Phillips and Mrs. Mary Lewis Harkness.

TWO QUARTS OF WINE MISSED BY PHARMACY

Spatafora's pharmacy, Eighth and DeSiard streets, was burglarized sometime early Saturday morning, and two quarts of wine were missing, Monroe police reported Saturday.

The theft was discovered shortly after 1 a. m., Saturday by a watchman for the Stovall Drilling Company, who notified police.

Entry was apparently gained by prying open the front door.

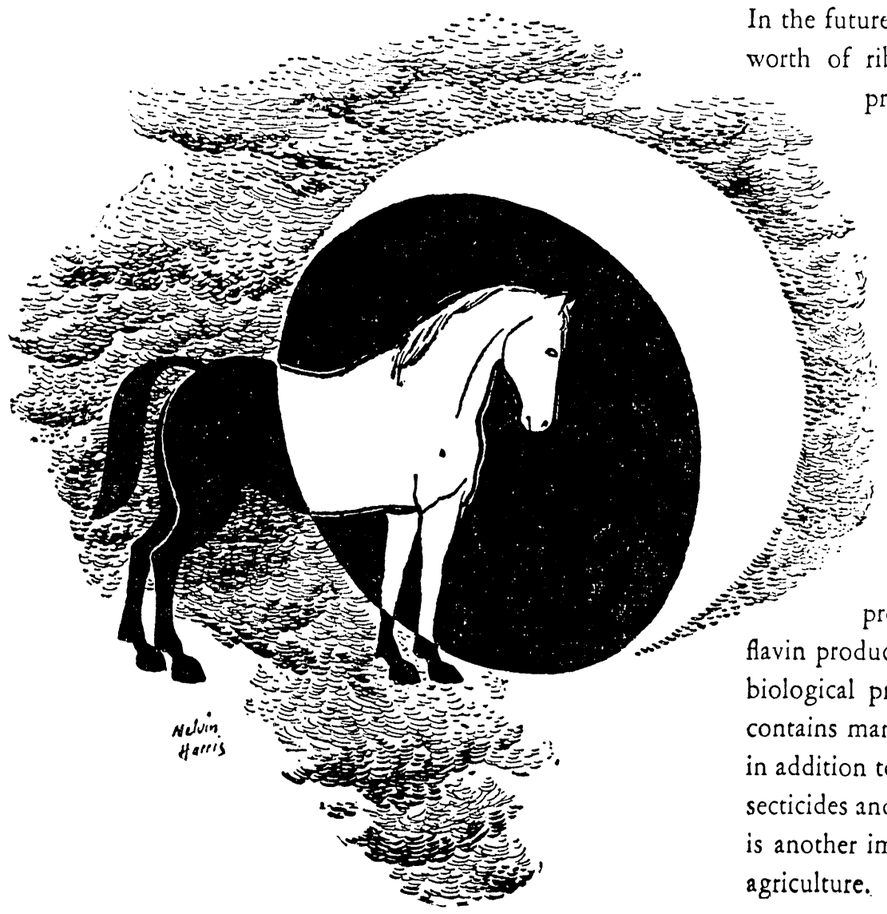
the horse that went blind in the moonlight...



It's an old superstition that men go mad in the moonlight, but did you ever hear of moonbeams blinding a horse? In 400 A.D., the Romans gave the name "moon blindness" to an equine eye disease because they believed it was caused by lunar changes.

Recent veterinary studies made by the Army show that moon blindness is a vitamin deficiency. Responsible for more blindness in horses and mules than all other causes combined, it occurs when diet lacks riboflavin.

Moon blindness now costs American horsemen more than $17,000,000 a year. In the future, breeders will add a penny's worth of riboflavin to each feedbag to prevent this destructive disease.

Riboflavin is essential to the health of poultry and livestock. Without it, chickens develop curled-toe paralysis, lay eggs that will not hatch, and lack vigor. Riboflavin promotes healthy growth and sound development in young cattle, pigs, dogs, and fur-bearing animals.

For years feed men have preferred B·Y-21, a natural riboflavin product made by an exclusive CSC biological process. This natural product contains many valuable nutritive elements in addition to riboflavin. Like the new insecticides and veterinary penicillin, B·Y-21 is another important CSC contribution to agriculture.

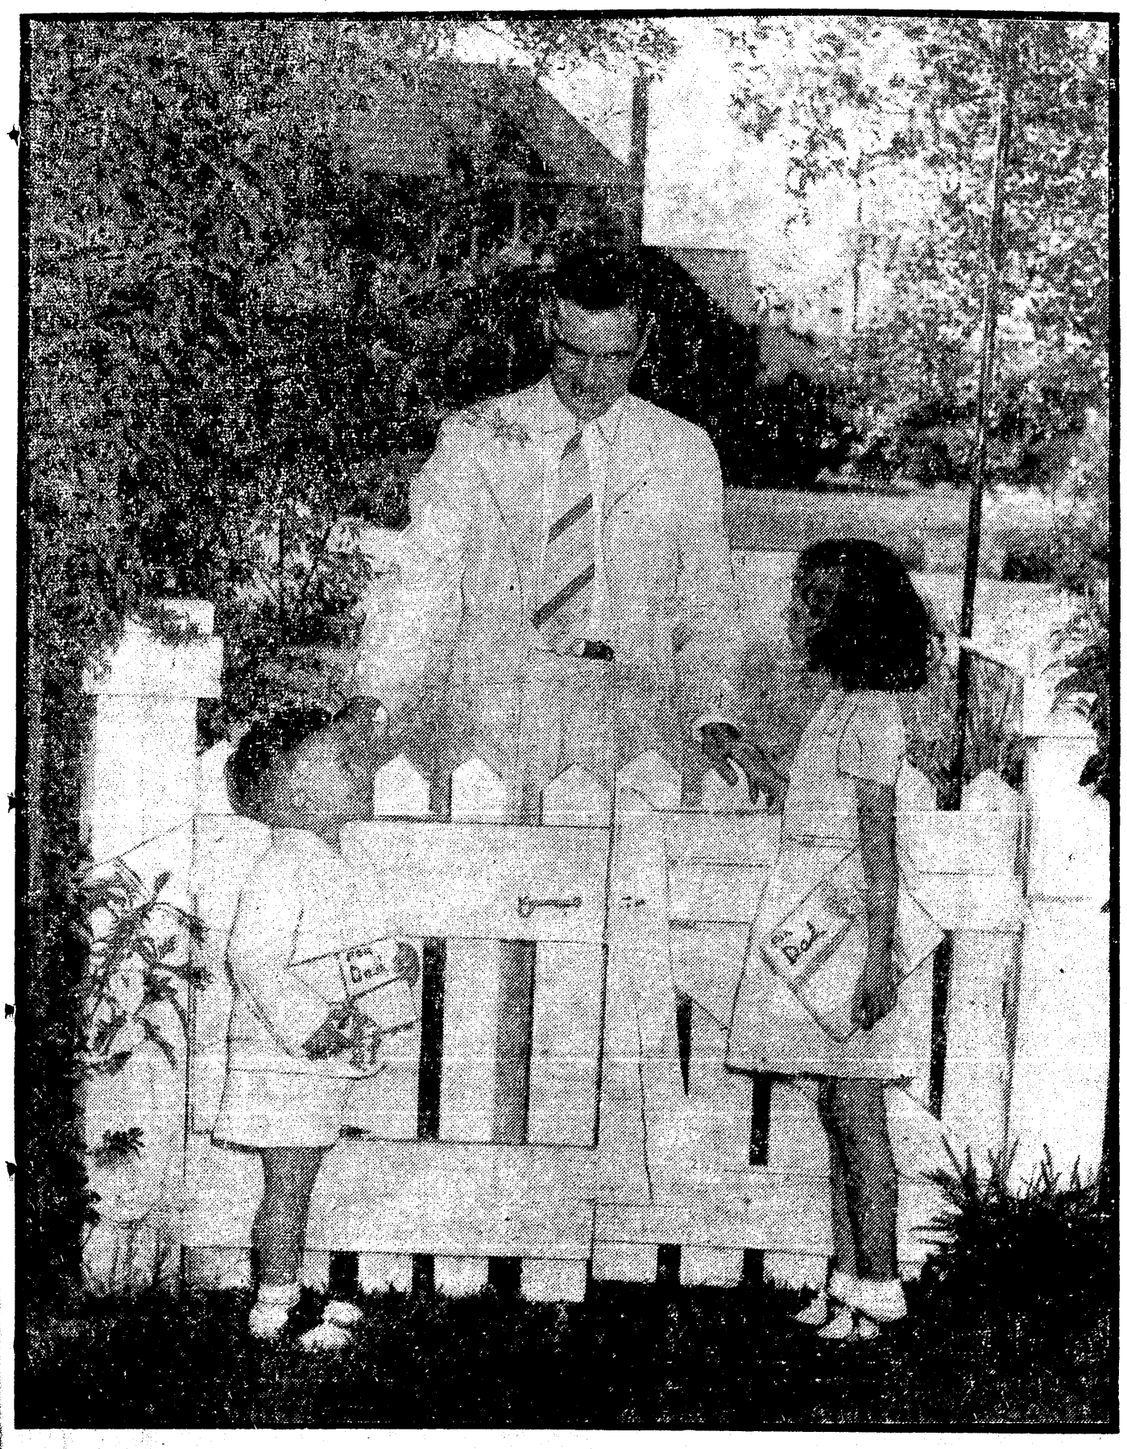
SOCIETY
Eve Bradford
EDITOR



TODAY IS FATHER'S DAY and that famous gentleman is basking rather blinkingly in the unusual spotlight attention of his "bewildering offspring." The picture page today is dedicated to all the fathers of the Twin Cities with five in particular snapped by the society photographer in characteristic poses, the typical American fathers. To the left in the upper section is seen Mr. Paul Neal with his beautiful daughter, Paula, enjoying a day of complete relaxation. In the center of the page is seen Mr. Joe Durrett and his handsome son, Joe Durrett, Jr., who arrived home last week from Kemper Military School. His other son, Billy Durrett, is attending summer school at L. S. U. In the picture to the right, upper section, is seen Mr. Thomas Downs and his splendid young son, Walter Thomas.

Gifts are about to be bestowed upon Mr. John Theus by his handsome young son, Jim Graves, and his lovely daughter, Helen. They are seen in the lower left section.

Mr. C. D. McAdams, lower right, is enjoying the companionship of his fine young son, Charles, and his lovely sub-deb daughter, Sandra, in the gardens of their home.

ST. MATTHEW'S SENIOR CLASS DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED IN HOME OF MR. AND MRS. SLAVANT

Members of St. Matthew's senior class responded with enthusiasm to the invitations issued by Mr. and Mrs. Chris Slavant to their open house following commencement exercises in honor of their son, J. C. Slavant, who was a member of the graduating class.

Everything conspired to make this evening a memorable one for members of the senior class and their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Slavant, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Nick C. Slavant and Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Sciro, greeted the guests at the door and ushered them into rooms where hundreds of long-stemmed pink lady roses complemented the pastel appointments. An artistic arrangement of pink roses and Easter lilies in an antique Dresden epergne was placed on the piano and twin arrangements of the same beautiful pink lady roses graced each side of the mantel. Roses on a handsomely carved tiered table were reflected in the floor-length mirror.

Mrs. Chris Slavant, was wearing a beautiful black and white model, draped skirt with white blouse beaded with iridescent beads and seed pearls forming floral designs of roses. Her corsage was of pink rose buds and tube roses. Mrs. Nick Slavant wore a crimson Carolyn model with double ruffle trimmings that formed a bustle in the back. She wore a white orchid. Mrs. Anthony V. Sciro wore azure blue crepe and a corsage of pink roses.

In the dining room where the table was overlaid with Pointe Venice lace, the rose motif was reflected in the large colonial bouquet. It formed the central decor of the table and was exquisitely fashioned, of small pink sweetheart and Madam Finche roses encircled with pink sweet peas. The bouquet stood as high as the pink candles burning in silver colonial candelabra at either end of the table. From the bouquet radiated streamers of shell pink satin hand-painted with forget-me-nots and gold letters, which spelled out "Graduation Class Of 1947" —on the table were placed silver trays laden with delicious open-face sandwiches, congealed salads, shrimp cocktail. Silver compotes contained bonbons, white individuals and mints decorated with blue forget-me-nots and the figures "1947."

Punch was served throughout the evening from an immense crystal bowl by Mrs. John Browne who wore aqua trimmed with black and Mrs. Pete Pe-asting who wore a black lace and crepe model with a corsage of white carnations.

A toast with sparkling champagne was made to the graduates for health, happiness and success.

Present to enjoy the evening's pleasures which ended with dancing were: Msgr. J. C. Marsh, Rev. Father T. Lennon, Rev. Father L. Bonin, Miss Helen Wilds and J. D. Alexander, Jr., Miss Terry Lynn de Jaive and Leo Loviza, Miss Ellen Browne and J. D Cameron, Miss Marie Moore and J. C. Slavant, Miss Joan la Monica and Roy Scalia, Miss Mamie Danna and Felise Danna, Miss Janet Voorhies and John Burton Laws, Miss Cecile Danna and Tommy Mingledoff, Miss Mary Jean Hollis and Norbert Miller, Miss Althea Burkett and Clarence Cooper, Miss Larona Ann Miller and Bobby Voorhies, Miss Billy Lou Toombs and Billy Gimler, Miss Katherine Hemler and Gladden Norris, Miss Frances Worley and Pete Messina, Mr. and Mrs. John Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Slavant, Mr. and Mrs. S. Messina, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony V. Sciro, and Mr. and Mrs. Chris Slavant.

Purely Personal

June should be known in Monroe as the month of gardenias. The air is perfumed with the heavy scent of gardenias from one end of the city to the other. Women wear them tucked in their hair, for corsages and others carry them just so they can enjoy their enchanting fragrance. Yankees visiting Monroe in June go into ecstasies over them and marvel at the idea of picking them at will from the bushes. They are used to paying a good round sum for a single gardenia.

Have you seen the hedge of gardenias in the Jack Rogers gardens? See them by all means but be sure and motor past the Rogers home at night when the perfume of the gardenias rise like incense. Mrs. J. V. Russell grows the most beautiful gardenias in all Monroe in the gardens of her home on Glenmar. Only the double variety, almost artificial looking so large and perfect are they, are grown in this garden.

There is one beauty spot in Monroe in particular that you must feast your eyes upon. It is in the south end of town along the sea wall where scarlet oleanders create a dramatic splash of color. The oleanders at one time were unknown to Monroe. No one ever thought of planting them as they are supposed to be more or less a tropical plant. These bushes, blooming so profusely at this time, are the joy and pride of City Commissioner C. R. Tidwell who is responsible, with the aid of the Monroe Garden Club, for the planting and caring of them.

How true the words, "Man proposes but God disposes." These words were especially true in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Haas who had completed plans for a glorious vacation in San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif., Seattle, Wash., Victoria, B. C., Banff, and other points of beauty in Canada. Just before their departure Mrs. Haas was taken ill and rushed to the sanitarium where she underwent a major operation. All's well that ends well, however. Mrs. Haas is improving daily and expects to be sufficiently recovered in a few weeks to enjoy a quiet and restful vacation with Mr. Haas on the Gulf coast.

There is a clever book called "Future Perfect," by Bernice Bryant, I would like to recommend for the girl graduate—looking to the future—to pursue this summer. The author says that "good manners are simply kindnesses and are most natural to the girl who is truly considerate." The author also describes, under an intriguing chapter heading called "the clothesline," how to get that bandbox appearance. But then, she adds, "manners speak louder than looks." Mother will be simply delighted with the advice for the junior miss on "How to act at home sweet home," as well as public places. One chapter is devoted to hobbies. The advice of the author is to "ride your hobby hard and happiness will be your reward." Having a hobby is a sure cure for loneliness and may lead to big things.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Haas will be off July 11 on one of those perfect vacations everyone dreams of having at some time or other. They will board a United Fruit Line steamer in New Orleans bound for the blue waters of the Caribbean with shore leave in Havana where they expect to be joined by friends. If time permits they plan to visit these friends on the sugar plantation where they reside.

Mrs. Earl Naiden is the busiest person we know of these days with automobile trips, here and there taking up most of her time. She has just returned from the University of Alabama where she helped her daughter, Charlotte, a student at the university to get off on a house party at Laguna Beach, Fla. She is at home at the moment but expects to leave July 1 the heated term with Mr. and Mrs. the heated term with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boman. Mrs. Naiden recently visited her sister, Mrs. Kendrick James in Houston and incidentally said farewell to her nephew who is sailing later in the month for a summer in Europe.

How we do envy Mrs. A. D. Tisdale that motor trip to New York City in company with her attractive daughter, Louise and young son, Dent. They are going to motor in leisurely fashion visiting every place of interest along the eastern sea board. While in New York they plan to visit such interesting places as Hyde Park, the home and the grave of Franklin Roosevelt. It's the nation's shrine and men, women, children of all nationalities and virtually of all creeds, races and political faiths visit it daily.

The points of interest—and it takes at least two hours to cover them adequately — are the mansion, the grave inside the 100-year-old hemlock hedge, and the Roosevelt Memorial Library.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, son of James and Sara Roosevelt, was born in the great house on Jan. 30, 1882. The mansion, standing on the rim of a gently rolling plateau, high above the Hudson river, has been left as it was when the president died.

A small room, just at the top of the second-floor landing, was Franklin D. Roosevelt's bedchamber throughout his childhood. Its single window overlooks the front lawns and the extensive groves of maples and evergreens. The room is almost sternly simple. The wallpaper is a faded pink flower design. The bed is of shiny brass. There are two straight-back chairs but no easy chair. The elder Roosevelt was not one to pamper his son.

A two-paneled mahogany bookcase and a Victorian mahogany table which Franklin Roosevelt, the boy, used as a writing desk are in about the places where he kept them. Most visitors, pausing at the corded barrier at the open door, let their voices fall to a whisper as they stare at these relics. They wonder at the simplicity and severity.

The large guest bedroom, across the hall, looks down on the Hudson, a sparkling ribbon, deep in the valley. King George used this bedchamber. So did Winston Churchill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone and son, Charles the third, of Philadelphia, are enjoying a visit with Mrs. Stone's father, Mr. George Ziegen. They were accompanied by Mr. George Moffitt of Philadelphia who is also a guest in the Ziegen home.

Lt. Colonel and Mrs. Joseph M. Whitfield announce the arrival of their second child, a daughter, at the University of California hospital in San Francisco, June 10. Colonel Whitfield who is attached to army recruiting was recently transferred to Washington, D. C., but at present is enjoying a leave of absence with his family in San Francisco. He and his family will be at home in a new apartment in Washington after the first of July. Mrs. Whitfield is the former Miss Kathleen Rolleigh of this city.

Mrs. Alton Williamson, Mrs. Roy Simmermaker, and Mrs. Ellis Williams motored to Shreveport recently to attend a meeting of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem. Mrs. Simmermaker and Mrs. Williams were initiated into the order at this time at a most impressive ceremony. Following the ceremony, a social hour was held in the spacious banquet hall of the beautiful new temple, Bethel No. 2, in honor of the new members.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wright, Jr., of New Orleans were the guests last week of their parents, Dr. and Mrs. George Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Reese Major.

Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Soloman and two sons, Edwin and Donald and Dr. Soloman's mother, Mrs. E. P. Soloman of Louisville, Ky., are enjoying a visit with Mrs. Soloman's parents, Dr. and Mrs. D. I. Hirsch in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Arent.

Grant Boardman arrived home last week from S. M. U. to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Boardman.

Friends are welcoming Mrs. Edwin Garver of Marion, Indiana, who arrived for a visit with her mother, Mrs. W. C. Daughtry on Speed Drive. Mrs. Garver is the former Sybil Daughtry.

Miss Smith Is The Bride Of Ivan W. Brown

In the quiet of the early morning in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin F. Smith, Linville, Louisiana, their daughter, Kathryn, became the bride of Mr. Ivan W. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Brown, Ottawa, Kansas on June 1st at nine o'clock a. m., with Rev. Gray Nolan performing the double ring ceremony.

Miss Olga Lee Wilson served as maid of honor. She wore a navy crepe model with corsage of blue hydrangea.

Mr. Ben E. Smith served as best man.

The bride wore a beautiful blue model with a round neckline. For something old she wore her mother's necklace, studded with amethysts and a diamond.

The three-tiered wedding cake surmounted with bride and groom figurines was encircled with a blue hydrangea. The bride and groom cut the cake and refreshments were served before they left for their honeymoon in Arkansas, Kansas and Colorado.

The bride changed her wedding raiment for a pale green suit with white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will be glad to be at home to their friends in the home of the bride's mother and father after August 22.

The bride is a graduate of Linville High School and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. She is employed as physical education instructor at A. and M. College, Magnolia, Arkansas. Mr. Brown is a graduate of Ottawa High School and a senior in the University of Kansas. Both bride and groom will attend the University of Colorado this summer.

STORY TELLING HOUR FOR CHILDREN TO BE OBSERVED AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Story telling is one of the oldest arts and dates back before the day of the written word. At that time the story teller was the most honored man of his tribe. He handed down the legends of his people by means of the spoken word.

Today we have the newspaper, radio and a wealth of books, but children still love to hear stories. The children of Ouachita parish were delighted with the announcement that a story hour would be held every Wednesday afternoon during the summer months at the Ouachita Parish Public Library at 418 Jackson Street. The time is 4:30. Since summer is essentially an out-of-doors time in the South the group meets in the shadowy rear gardens of the Library. All children old enough to be interested are invited to come.

Last Wednesday Miss Frances Flanders, the Librarian told the stories to an enthralled group. She told "Little Black Sambo" by Helen Bannerman; "The Tale of Benjamin Bunny" by Beatrix Potter; "The Constant Tin Soldier" by Hans Christian Anderson; and "The Elephant's Child" by Rudyard Kipling. Other story tellers will have charge of the program on various Wednesdays. All boys and girls are invited to come to the Library each Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 and bring a pillow, if you don't like to sit on the grass.

Mrs. E. W. Cruse, one of Monroe's most gracious hostesses, awaits guests in the drawing room of her handsome new home. Mrs. Cruse entertained 300 guests last week complimentary to Miss Virginia Newman. Miss Newman and her mother, Mrs. Paul Newman, in the lower center picture, were photographed in the living room of the Cruse home.

One of the lovely members of the younger set, Mary Gertrude Rodriguez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rodriguez, was named salutatorian of the eighth grade Ouachita Parish High School. She excels in music and appeared in Miss Mary Grace Lawn's recital. Center left.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bailey, Jr., cut their wedding cake at the reception following their wedding. Mrs. Bailey is the former Miss Audrey Ruth Adcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Adcock. Lower left.

Miss Joyce Litton, right center, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Litton, was a member of this year's graduating class of Baylor University.

The engagement of Miss Marjorie Warner, lower right, niece of Miss Myrtle Rodgers of this city and a former member of the Georgia Tucker School faculty, is announced today by her mother, Mrs. Amos C. Beadles Home Is Scene Of Wedding

Lovely Simplicity Characterizes Beadles-Fleming Nuptial Event

A quiet home wedding characterized by charming simplicity took place in the reception suite of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beadles' home when their daughter, Elizabeth Sue, became the bride of Mr. Olma G. Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Fleming of West Monroe at three-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, June 8, with Rev. George Pearce, Jr., pastor of Memorial Methodist Church, officiating with the impressive double ring ceremony.

The ceremony took place before an improvised altar flanked with baskets of white gladioli and fever few. Lush, green ferns formed the decorative background. Masses of white gladioli banked the reception suite and every vantage point.

Mrs. Harvey Nelson, pianist, wearing a pink crepe model, rendered a prenuptial concert and accompanied the soloist, Mr. J. M. McBeth who sang Cadman's "At Dawning." During the ceremony Mrs. Nelson played Liebestraum by Liszt and immediately following the ceremony played "Always."

Miss Leita Baker, maid-of-honor, preceded the bride to the altar. She wore a lovely white waffle pique suit with bustle effect in the back and toast accessories. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Reginald Jones, cousin to the groom, served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a becoming acqua blue model with sweetheart neckline, and accessories of white. Her only ornament, a handsome broach with diamond setting more than 75 years old, was borrowed from a close friend, Mrs. C. B. Shackleford.

The bride carried a small ivory covered Bible surmounted by a beautiful orchid and valley lilies tied with white ribbons interspersed with valley lilies.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. Mrs. Beadles, mother of the bride, received in a floral crepe model with a corsage of white rosebuds. Mrs. Fleming, the groom's mother, was attractive in navy sheer, with corsage of white rosebuds.

The dining table overlaid with handsome lace, had for central decor, a three-tiered wedding cake surmounted by bride and groom figurines. The cake was embossed with crystallized miniature gardinias, calla lilies, and valley lilies. Placed on either side of the cake were three-tiered candelabra holding white tapers.

Frosted fruit frappe, individual wedding cakes, and mints were served by Misses Ann Jones Beverly Bogan, Gene Smith, Martha Ann Scott, and Avalyn Woods. They wore pastel colored dresses with fitted bodice and long, full skirts. Their corsages were of gardinias.

Mrs. Fleming graduated from Ouachita Parish High School in 1944 and from Northeast Junior College in 1946 where she majored in business administration. She is now employed at the Ouachita National Bank.

Mr. Fleming graduated from O. P. H. S. in 1944. There he was sports editor at the Ouachita Lion and was on the football team. He attended Northeast Junior College for one year, where he was elected to several important offices including business manager of Chacahaula, the yearbook. He entered the army in the fall of 1945 and was sent overseas the following February. He was with the war department and was stationed in Germany, where he remained until April, 1947.

Among the numerous gifts bestowed upon Mrs. Fleming during her engagement days were the beautiful china and linens sent from Europe by Mr. Fleming. Outstanding among these gifts were a set of six napkin rings of spun silver.

The bride changed her wedding raiment for a light blue bolera suit with dainty blouse of white batiste and lace. She wore the orchid and valley lilies from her bridal bouquet as a corsage.

The young couple left via air on a two week's honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C., and New York City. When they return they will be at home in their apartment at 315 Pine street.

MISS SCHUSTER OBSERVED AN OLD TIME CUSTOM WHEN SHE BECAME BRIDE OF MR. COX

Observing one of the old superstitions that a bride must wear something old, Miss Barbara Jean Schuster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schuster of Shreveport, La., wore a handsome antique gold watch and chain, a family heirloom which originally belonged to a relative in Virginia, when she walked toward the improvised altar in the home of her aunt, Mrs Thomas Adams on DeSiard Drive to become the bride of Mr. Prentiss Edward Cox, son of Mrs. Travis Shannon of New Orleans, formerly of this city, on Saturday, May 31 at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city performed the impressive ceremony.

The couple exchanged vows before an improvised altar at one end of the reception suite where beautiful magnolias and white gladioli were banked. On either side stood candelabra of graduated length supporting white lighted tapers. White floor standards held artistic arrangements of white gladioli. The scene was reflected in the large antique mirror over the mantel which held a central decor of magnolias on either side of which burned candles in crystal holders.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Grover Cornett played nuptial selections including some of the bride's favorites. She also accompanied Miss Charlotte Miller, who sang in lovely voice, "I Love You Truly." Miss Miller was wearing a classic white crepe gown with a closely fitting bodice with low neckline and a long full skirt. It was trimmed in metal flowers, and she wore a gardenia in her hair. The traditional wedding marches were played for the processional and recessional.

Miss Marilyn Kaffie of Shreveport, maid of honor and only attendant of the bride, wore a lovely gown of aqua swiss. The closely fitted waist with dropped shoulder effect was joined to a full floor length skirt trimmed in narrow ruffles and worn over a crinoline skirt. She carried a large old-fashioned fan adorned with Picardy gladioli attached to satin streamers of the same hue. She also wore gladioli in her haid.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a diaphanous gown of white mousseline de sioe. The bodice was fashioned with a yoke encircled by shirred bands of self material, and the full short sleeves were also edged with shirring. Over the long, full, skirt fell a peplum of graduated length with two rows of shirring forming a bustle effect. She wore long mits. Her finger tip veil was held to the hair with a wide band of pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white iris and bouvardia tied with white satin ribbon. For something old she wore a gold watch and chain, a family heirloom which had originally belonged to a relative in Virginia and later to Mrs. Thomas Adams.

Mr. Bernard Zuccaro of Natchez, Miss., served the groom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception was held. Artistic arrangements of magnolias, gladioli and gardenias were employed at vantage points throughout the reception suite. Extending courtesies were Mrs. Adams, who wore a beautiful mousseline de soie of silver grey with embroidered floral designs. The basque was attached to a full skirt which fell in graceful folds, and she wore a French corsage of carnations in shades of rose. The bride's mother was lovely in a handsome lace aqua gown. The tight bodice, fashioned with a square neckline, was joined to a floor-length skirt of two full flounces edged with aqua net. She wore a French corsage of wine colored carnations. The groom's mother was striking in a long gown, an original model, of heavy grey silk with pink metal thread stripe with a tailored waist, wide belt and full skirt. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Presiding over the bride's book was Miss Helen Hayes who wore brown crepe with accordian pleated skirt and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. J. L. Adams, Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl and Mrs. W. M. Adams of Shreveport served punch from a crystal bowl which rested on a reflector garlanded with fern and white blossoms. Silver trays holding individual cakes embossed in valley lilies and mints were passed among the guests by Mrs. Cecil Guinn, the groom's sister from Jennings, La., Miss Betty Wolbrette, Miss Vern Parish, Mrs. Eddie Townson, all of Shreveport.

The bride's table was adorned at one end with beautiful plaque gardenias and fern. From it radiated white satin streamers of graduated length. Along the ribbons which extended the full length of the table were attached to low crystal holders supporting gleaming white candles. A white gardenia marked each holder.

The wedding cake was a three-tiered confection embossed in garlands of roses and soft green leaves and surmounted with silver bells tied with tulle and gardenias. Following the ceremony of cutting the cake, the bride changed her wedding gown for a smart tailleur of white with brown accessories. A corsage of white orchids completed the striking costume.

The bride is a graduate of Northeast Junior College and the University of North Carolina. On the local college campus she participated in numerous student activities in which she gained recognition for leadership. She held the vice-presidency of the freshman class, and Delta Psi Omega, national dramatic honor society, and membership in Phi Theta Kappa, national junior college honor society. She also was editor of the college newspaper, Pow Wow. At the University of North Carolina she was active in the International Relations Club and National Psychology fraternity.

Mr. Cox also graduated from Northeast Junior College. There he was cadet captain of the R. O. T. C., president of the Student Body, and editor of the Pow Wow. He held membership in Delta Psi Omega and the Gold Jacket Club. Soon after graduating he entered the navy where he saw service for three years. Receiving his discharge, Mr. Cox matriculated last at Louisiana State University where he became a member of The Daily Reveille staff and the debate team. He will be in charge of news broadcasts from the university radio station WLSU while he continues his studies as a junior in the school of journalism.

After honeymooning on the Gulf coast, the couple are now at home in Baton Rouge.

Cut-of-town guests attending the wedding included: Miss Vern Parish, Miss Betty Wolbrette, Mr. Henry Ross, Mrs. M. Bahcall and sons, Bob and John, Mrs. W. M. Adams, Mrs. Eddie and Mrs. Harold Lazarus, Mrs. Ned Lazarus, all of Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. Travis Shannon of New Orleans, Mrs. Lattye Seamon of California, Mr and Mrs. S. A. The wedding vows were exchanged beneath an archway of ivy and Queen Anne's lace, flanked by tall floor baskets of pink hydrangea interspersed with Queen Anne's lace.

Prior to the ceremony, Miss Virginia Mashaw rendered several selections. "Sweetest Story Ever Told" was played during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely white crepe model with brown and white accessories. She carried a white Bible surmounted with an orchid showered with white streamers caught with fern.

MARRIAGE OF MISS FORD AND MR. ROGER KAUFMAN IS PROMINENT JUNE EVENT

Charming simplicity characterized the wedding, June 5, of Miss Helen Baker Ford, only daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Ford of Ruston, La., and Mr. Roger Allyn Kaufman, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Kaufman, of Tulsa, Okla.

The double ring ceremony was performed at eight o'clock at the Trinity Methodist church with the pastor, Rev. J. J. Rasmussen, officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with the colors pink and blue, predominating. Along the chancel rail entwined with ivy was studded with small sprays of pink and blue hydrangea and Queen Anne's lace interspersed with candelabra supporting tall white tapers.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. S. L. White, organist, rendered a program of prenuptial music which included "Ava Maria," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," and "One Alone," as the candles were lighted by Mr. Billy Baker, and Mr. Vince Madonna of New Orleans. She accompanied a trio comprising Mrs. Don Milam, Miss Gloria Bullock and Miss Amanda Wilder as they sang, "I Love Thee," by Greig. Miss Bullock, soloist, sang "Because." "Clair de Lune" by DeBussey was played softly during the ceremony.

The entrance of the wedding party was marked by the playing of the traditional wedding march. Miss Leita Baker of West Monroe, maid of honor, was gowned in a blue taffeta, fashioned with a full overskirt of matching net, long bodice and cap sleeves edged with a ruffle of net. She carried a colonial bouquet of painted daisies tied with pink and blue maline with matching ribbon streamers. Her head dress was of satin ribbon and maline adorned with painted daisies.

Bridesmaid, Miss Ann Baker of Ruston, was dressed identical to the maid of honor except for color. Her dress was of petal pink. Junior bridesmaids, Miss Ann Hendrickson, wore pink, and Miss Jane Baker, wore blue.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. J. A. Baker, wore a beautiful wedding gown of marquisette fashioned with full skirt cascading from a closely moulded long waisted bodice into a full, graceful, train. The sweetheart neckline was outlined with a pleated ruffle, and the long sleeves tapered to points over her hands. Tiny satin covered buttons closed the dress in the back, extending from the neck to the hipline. The veil of imported illusion was of beautiful heirloom lace and fell in a long train from a pearl covered lace edged capulet trimmed in lilies-of-the-valley. Her bouquet was of gardenias and tuberoses, combined with tufts of white maline. It was complemented with puffs of white satin ribbons, and long streamer. Her only ornament was a string of pearls.

Mr. Jim Carter attended the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. Madonna, Mr. Dawson Lery, Minden, and Mr. G. T. Shinpock.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Baker, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Greeting the guests at the door were Mr. and Mrs. Baker, and receiving with the bridal party were Mrs. Ford and Dr. and Mrs. Kaufman. Mrs. Ford wore an aqua blue lace model and a corsage of pink split carnations. Mrs. Kaufman, mother of the bridegroom, wore an aqua model and a corsage of gardenias.

The Baker home was banked with garden flowers. Vases of blue salvia, snapdragons and gardenias graced the living room where the bridal party received the guests. In the dining room garlands of mixed flowers were used to advantage. The bride's table was adorned with the tiered wedding cake encircled at the base with gardenias.

Attending at the punch bowl was Miss Sarah Ann Baskin. Mrs. Sam Holstead served cake at the other end of the table, assisted by Mrs. Don Milam, Miss Gloria Bullock, and Miss Amanda Wilder. Miss Gloria Baker was in charge of the bride's book.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman left for a honeymoon in the Ozark mountains. For traveling Mrs. Kaufman wore an Annie Laurie original suit in oatmeal tan with amber button trim, and brown and white accessories. Her white, off-the-face straw hat, was trimmed with bow of brown taffeta ribbon. With this stunning outfit she wore a corsage of yellow Peruvian lilies and talisman roses.

MONTH OF JUNE RECALLS OLD-TIME SUPERSTITIONS OBSERVED BY BRIDES TODAY

This being June all the old superstitions associated since time immemorial with marriages come flooding back to remind today's bride that if she weds on Monday it will for wealth, Wednesday the best day of all; Thursday for crosses, Friday for losses, Saturday no luck at all! The bride will also be reminded of the old superstition that the only way she can recover her luck or losses if she insists on being married on Friday or Saturday is to be kissed by a man with a mustache.

Other superstitions still prevailing are: Married in pink, of you he'll e'er tnink. Married in blue, love ever true. Married in grey, you'll go far away. Married in red, you'll wish yourself dead (especially if it's a hot day). Married in black you'll wish yourself back. Married in green you'll be ashamed to be seen.

Then of course there's the superstition about something blue. It was borrowed from the ancient Israelites whose fringed garments carried a blue border signifying love, purity, and fidelity. The throwing of the bridal bouquet came from the 14th century when it was the bride's garter instead. Delicacy or modesty, as you will, in time defeated this movement, and the bouquet was substituted. The decline of the rice throwing dove tails neatly with the decline of large families, for it symbolized fertility.

Giving the bride away is a relic of the time when brides were sold. The veil is a reminder of when she was shrouded from head to foot. (If the bridegroom was too disappointed after the unveiling, he could get his money or wed back.) The best man was the warrior in the happy days when a man never bothered to buy a wife; he merely stole her. The feeling about mothers-in-law also started then; the old girl was annoyed at having her daugnter stolen, altho what she would have done if she hadn't been stolen is any one's guess. The honeymoon was the period when the captor hid the lady until her family decided it was good riddance and the 30-day period after the event went northern Europeans (among them Altila, who died of it) drank metheglin or mead, a wine made from honey.

The ring on the left hand? Primitive man wove a cord and wound it around the waist of the lady he wanted to drag around. The Angelo-Saxons first placed it on the right hand, signifying power and authority, later shifted it to the left, for subjection. The Greeks contended, erroneously, that a vein from the (left) ring finger flows directly to the heart. Why a circlet? Eternity, union.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT THE BASTROP CATHOLIC CHURCH HONORS MISS TINA COLLINS

Hundreds of friends thronged the little Catholic church in Bastrop and also attended the country club reception following the church ceremony last Friday afternoon to pay homage to Miss Trina Collins. Miss Collins was formally presented with the Papal decoration "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" by his Excellency, Most Rev. Charles Pascal Greco, bishop of Alexandria. It was the first time that any woman in the diocese of North Louisiana, which is more than a hundred years old, had been so honored with the Papal medal.

Testifying to the esteem with which Miss Collins is regarded by the citizens of the community were Jews, Protestants, and Catholics. In fact members of her own faith were outnumbered both at St. Joseph's church and at the Morehouse Country club reception.

The rites began with vested altar boys and priests leading the bishop in procession from the rectory to the church. Buddy Oliver acted as cross bearer, with Neal Louis Oliver and Jimmy Inzina as candle bearers.

Then followed the beautiful ritual of the church service. Charles Biggar of Monroe, a cousin, sang two solos, "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus." Members of the choir were Mrs. E. E. Ellis and Martin Przekwas, with Mrs. J. W. Gersch and Billy Huckabay at the organ.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. E. Howard of Pineville, chancellor of the diocese of Alexandria, read the Papal document and its English translation which is as follows:

Pope Pius XII, Supreme Pontiff of the Holy Roman Catholic church, has deigned to decree and bestow, with singular honor, the insignia of the Holy Cross, upon Miss Tina Collins, for her outstanding work "for the church and the supreme Pontiff," granting her the faculty of adorning herself with this sacred ornament at will. Given at Vatican City this 15th day of January, 1947.

Among the church dignitaries in attendance were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Marsh of Monroe, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. E. Howard of Pineville, Father Ulric Landolt, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Father Normand Bielicke of Bastrop, Rev. Raymond Micek of Bastrop; and Rev. Arsenius Gatzemeier of West Monroe.

Bishop Greco, in bestowing the medal, stated that Miss Tina was being presented with the Papal honor because of her untiring and unselfish service to her church, and also for the community in which she lives. He said that she was always thinking and working for her neighbors and fellow citizens.

Bishop Greco also told in his address at the church of how the Holy Father in Rome "keeps watch" over his children and told the listeners of his recent audience with the Pope in Rome. He said that His Holiness naturally knew of "Miss Tina" and all good Catholics, keeping informed through the media of the bishops and arch-bishops who in turn are kept informed through the local priests. He told of the vastness of the membership of the Roman Catholic church which numbers some 400,000,000—more than all other Christian bodies put together.

Both the church and the country club were overflowing with friends, so that loud speakers, contributed by Mr. Kammel Shamis, were necessary to carry the words of the speakers to those outside. Jack Pyle operated the loud speakers at the church and country club.

The orchid worn by Miss Collins was contributed by Wade Black, Pine Bluff, Ark., florist, formerly of Bastrop. Miss Roberta Evans had charge of the invitations which were mailed to those outside the parish. She was also in charge of the supper served to the bishops and priests, and was assisted by Mrs. G. B. Griffin, Dixie Griffin and Jeanne Oliver.

Bishop Greco in his remarks at the country club declared that the honoree is known far and wide, throughout the diocese and always as "Miss Tina". He said that the fact that she is known better by her first name than her last testifies to her endearment by friends. Father Marsh admitted that he recommended the Papal distinction for Miss Tina some 12 years ago, and that he was sorry it did not come at that time—but that he was happy the honor had come somewhat belatedly. The question of "how long" Miss Tina had been active in the church and the community caused some mirth-making, because the recipient of the medal had "consistently refused to reveal her age". It was the concensus of opinion, however, that she had been working unselfishly for others in the community for almost half a century.

Friends were in attendance not only from Morehouse parish but from Monroe, Fairbanks, Rayville and other cities.

PRESENTED WITH PAPAL MEDAL

Miss Tina Collins of Bastrop, La., prominent figure in civic, social and religious circles, received an honor last week that has never before been conferred upon a woman in the diocese of North Louisiana. She was presented with the papal decoration, "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice," by his Excellency, Most Rev. Charles Pascal Greco, bishop of Alexandria.

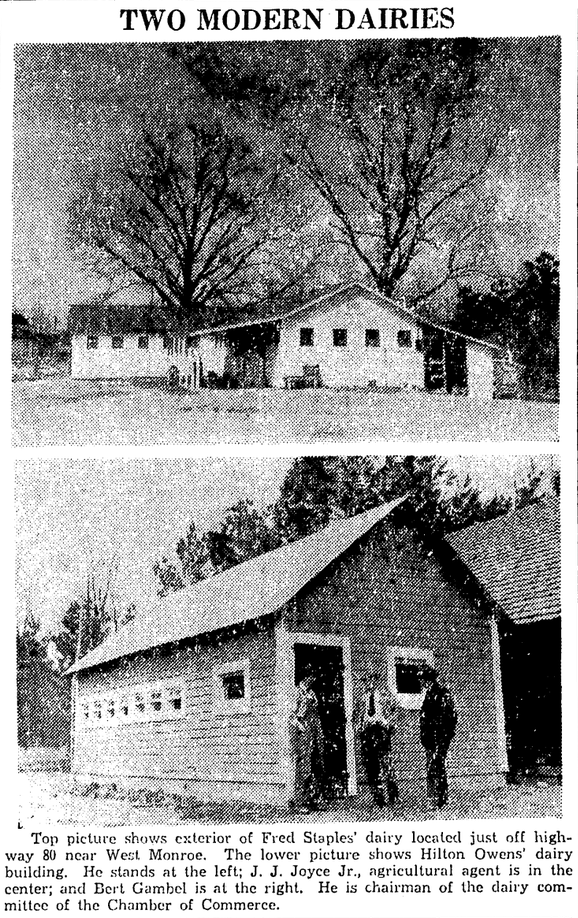
TWO MODERN DAIRIES



Top picture shows exterior of Fred Staples' dairy located just off highway 80 near West Monroe. The lower picture shows Hilton Owens' dairy building. He stands at the left; J. J. Joyce Jr., agricultural agent is in the center; and Bert Gambel is at the right. He is chairman of the dairy committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

DAIRYING MAKES BIG STRIDES IN PARISH IN PAST 6 MONTHS

Numerous New Dairies Are Opened; All Are Entirely Modern

During the past six months, dairying has become the fastest-growing business in Ouachita parish, according to Parish Agricultural Agent Jasper J. Joyce, Jr. More than a dozen new dairies have opened up in the parish recently, Joyce says, and the expansion is expected to continue for some time. These new dairies will mean an important new source of income for Ouachita farmers, new business for merchants who supply the farmers, and a greatly increased supply of high quality milk for the people of Monroe, West Monroe and other communities, the agricultural agent declares.

Most of the new dairies are opening in the western part of the parish, he says, with a number in the Cypress, Okaloosa, and Calhoun vicinities. All of them sell their milk in Monroe and West Monroe.

"There are several things behind the dairy boom in Ouachita parish," Joyce explains. "The most important, of course, is the serious need for more good, high-quality fresh milk in the Twin Cities. This area also has used more milk than was produced here. During the war, as every citizen of the Twin Cities knows, the situation became really serious. The distributors brought in fresh milk from every possible source but a large part of the time there just wasn't nearly enough available from any source and often reconstituted milk was the best many folks could get. It was a wholesome product, but just not the equal of fresh milk."

The new dairymen figure there always will be a good local demand for their product. Some of them are cotton and corn growers who have switched to dairying to assure themselves of a steady, year 'round source of income. They believe that over a period of time they can make better and more profitable use of their labor in dairying than in any other kind of farming, particularly those who have land that is not so well suited to mechanical cultivation of cotton. Still others are taking up dairying as a form of diversification as they will have something to fall back on in case of another bad cotton year like 1946.

The Chamber of Commerce of the Twin Cities is interested in dairying in Ouachita both from the viewpoint of a good milk supply for the cities and from the viewpoint of better business. Bert Gambrell is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce dairying committee.

"Distributors have been spending $20,000 to $30,000 a month bringing in milk and cream and powdered milk from elsewhere for sale here," Gambrell says. "And there hasn't been a pound of butter or ice cream mix made here. We'd all like to see every bit of that money go to farmers in this part of the state."

Gambrell points out that money that goes to the farmer comes back for the benefit of the entire community and will be spent more carefully and in more different business places than money going to anyone else.

"There's room for a lot more dairies in this section" says Gambrell. "The business men of the Twin Cities look forward to the time when no more reconstituted milk will be sold in the Twin Cities and at least a large part of the butter and ice cream mix used here will be made from milk produced in Ouachita parish."

Joyce points out that most of the new dairies are family size, no larger than can be handled by the family or with other dependable help that may be available. They have from a dozen to two dozen milking cows. Barns are small but modern, with separate feed room, modern milk rooms, and one or more mechanical milkers each.

"One of the finest things about these new dairies," Joyce continued, "is the high standard of sanitation they are setting. They are going to give the older dairymen, with all their experience, a lot of competition in producing good, sanitary, high quality milk. Their barns are according to the latest design and have been approved by the state health department. And I'd like to add that the Production Credit Association knows the need for greater milk production in this area and has been a wonderful help with the financing some of these folks need and in helping them get off to a good, businesslike start."

The agricultural extension service is encouraging the new dairymen to buy their cattle carefully, feed them properly, grow as much pasture and feed at home as possible, produce clean, high quality milk, and pay off all debts as soon as possible, Joyce says.

SPRAYING URGED TO KILL INSECTS

Many scale insects infest our plants, such as camellias, lilies, broad leaf evergreens, and citrus fruits. The mealy bug is a serious pest of azaleas. The white fly is one of our worst garden pests. Mrs. Jewel L. McQuiller suggests the control measure for all of these insects is a spray containing a highly refined mineral oil. There are a number of such sprays on the market. Read the label to see that the oil emulsion being sold you contains mineral oil and not a crude oil as is used in dormant sprays.

Mrs. McQuiller says that now is the time to spray. The emulsion should be diluted with 50 pails of water to one part of the spray material. For a few shrubs or small trees, use 1/2 pint (1 cup) of the spray material to 3 gallons of water. If you have only one or two very small shrubs, you might need as little as 2 tablespoonfuls of spray material to 3 quarts of water. The important thing is to spray when needed. Contact Mrs. McQuiller, your home demonstration agent, she will furnish you a copy of a spray schedule for ornamental plants.

PAJAMA HITCH HIKER

MILES CITY, Mont.—(AP)—Policeman Chester Lancy thought that pajamas were a most unusual costume for a hitch-hiker to be wearing. So he stopped, picked up the youth and soon learned that the boy had escaped from the state industrial school at Miles City.

REV. WATSON IS N. J. C. SPEAKER

Warns That Atomic Age Holds Dangers If Improperly Used

Unless the atomic age is controlled by real leaders, we must face conflict and tragic possibilities, declared Rev. R. T. Watson, pastor of the local First Christian church, when he addressed faculty and students of Northeast Junior College at the first assembly of the summer term.

The speaker, who was presented by Dr. W. R. Hammond, director of the summer school, discussed the factors which he considered essential in a livable atomic age.

"We must develop a world conscious as we have developed a world consciousness," the speaker asserted. We have annihilated time and space in our endeavor to achieve much in materialistic ways, he said. But unless we develop a world conscious we are doomed, he declared. Sacredness of all human life and the rights of every nation must be respected if we are to live decently on an earth where there is plenty for all.

In our intense activity we fail to realize that all action is not progress, Reverend Watson explained. It is difficult for man to achieve happiness if he emphasizes the fight for the tangible.

The atomic age demands that we learn to live abundantly in a world of abundance. Life will depend upon the liver, the speaker said. Some have not accepted religion because of its mysteries. We may know a great deal about Jesus and not be religious. Knowledge of theology is not religion, Reverend Watson explained. Religion is not ritual; it is not confined to a day or a place. Religion is the center of the heart; it is an every day experience, he concluded. Without the program and purpose which come with religion one must fail to receive blessings of a peaceful mind. This security of spirituality is essential when we are faced with the possibilities of the atomic age. Religion operates in the school, the home and in recreational life.

A music attraction of the program was the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the group under leadership of John M. Ward, veteran student, with Mrs. Florence Z. Allbritton of the N. J. C. music faculty serving as accompanist. Miss Beverly Ringwald of Monroe was featured as soloist in rendering one stanza.

THE NATION TODAY
By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—You want to buy something on time? Now the government lays down the rules on how you do it.

For example:

On things like autos and refrigerators you must pay one-third of the value down and the balance within 15 months.

There's a chance the controls may be removed altogether. Should they be? President Truman says no. He argues this way:

Goods still are not plentiful enough to meet full demand. Even so, installment buying is increasing. And—

The more that kind of buying increases, with goods still not plentiful, the more the tendency for prices to rise. He wants prices kept down.

The opposite argument comes from Rep. Wolcott, Michigan Republican and chairman of the House banking committee:

The controls work against those people who haven't been able to save enough money to make a fair-size down payment. For example:

Now a man who wants a $1,500 auto must pay one-third down, $500, and the rest in 15 months.

But a man who hasn't saved $500 still could buy a car if the down payment were smaller and the time for the balance was longer than 15 months.

In 1940, before the controls, total consumer credit was $9,153,000,000. In 1946, with the controls in effect, it was $9,958,000,000.

President Roosevelt, under his wartime powers, imposed the controls in 1941 to control prices a bit. President Truman has continued them.

But should such controls, with the war over two years, be continued by presidential wartime power alone?

Mr. Truman thinks not, even though he wants them continued. This week he asked Congress to continue them by passing a law.

He says that if Congress doesn't continue them by law, he'll drop the controls altogether.

He told that to Wolcott's banking committee, which is considering the problem.

Because of Wolcott's attitude, outlined above, his committee is unlikely to recommend to the full Congress that such a law be passed.

So if Congress doesn't act, the president will drop the controls, even though his economic advisors want them continued.

Boyle's Notebook

By Hal Boyle

HOLLYWOOD, June 14. —(AP)— An elderly vegetarian who doesn't tipple is the king of west coast party throwers.

And no one has more fun at his parties than does Multi-Millionaire Atwater Kent, 73-year-old retired inventor and radio manufacturer.

Searching for operatic talent, helping charities and giving parties are his hobbies.

"I like people and I like to see them have a good time," he said. "I have no work to do now since I retired. So consequently I can put all my time into my pleasures—and people are my chief pleasure."

His home is a fabulous red-roofed white villa atop a mountain in Bel Air, an exclusive district where tired people rest from making much money and even the moths are reported to have gold-plated wings. The estate, one of the real showplaces of America, has a series of terraced gardens reminiscent of an old Italian castle.

Kent—his friends insist on calling him "Attie" but "I really prefer to be called Atwater"—lives alone on the estate with seventeen house servants and seven gardeners.

Diplomats, financiers, movie stars, notables in many fields and ordinary people he just met and liked are invited to his parties. They all come. His parties are divided into two kinds—civic and private. The civic affairs may bring up to 500 guests—such as the party he once threw for the children of the movie colony. He hired a circus for the day—gossips said it cost $3,000 and he enjoyed it so much he brought the circus back for four other parties. Total casualties: One camel fell off a truck, one lady writer feil off an elephant.

I went to one of his smaller private parties, the kind he likes best to give. He greeted us at the door—as he does every guest individually—a slim, small, upright man with keen and friendly blue eyes and an old-world politeness. He wore a gray suit, black shoes, and a large red and gray bow tie.

He is what the ladies hereabouts describe as "one of the last of the real gentlemen."

Scores of gaily colored balloons with long strings floated about the rooms. I asked him his recipe for a good party—aside from the good drinks, good food, and good music he always provides—and he said:

"For a friends' party like this I like to have about 125 people. Over that it gets unwieldly, and I can't mingle with them all and be friendly or as hospitable as I like.

"I think that at least half the people should know each other. If there are too many strangers they don't mix well. The first hour is the critical period of a party—it is always quiet. By the second hour they've eaten and had a little to drink, and are feeling better. By the third hour they know each other, and everything is going strong."

I asked about the balloons.

"I first used them at the circus party," he said. "They made quite a hit. They stir things up—take away the formality."

Although he lives abstemiously himself, he delights in seeing his guests eat and drink well. But his parties are never raucous.

Kent said he didn't know which of the hundreds of guests who had come to his home had been most interesting.

"And if I did," he said, "I wouldn't say.' Like Will Rogers, I like every man I have ever met. I just want to share in people having a good time."

A film figure present estimated that it cost "$15 to $20 a head—that's the way we figure them in Hollywood—by the head"—for entertainment of the kind Kent likes to provide.

"That would make $2,500 or under for this little gathering," he said.

But to Kent now "giving parties is my biggest pleasure in life." It's worth it to him if the guests have fun. And where do you think Hollywood's leading party thrower was born?

Vermont! Yes, V-e-r-m-o-n-t.

South America is the fourth largest of the continents, with an approximate area of 7 1/2-million square miles.

TRIBUTE PAID JACK RAMSAUR

Northeast Junior College Observes Passing of Former Student

Northeast Junior College paid tribute Thursday to one of its former students, Jack Wright Ramsaur, whose death occurred Wednesday from a self-inflicted bullet wound in Bastrop where he resided with his mother, Mrs. Johnnie Ramsaur, and a younger brother, Clark. The faculty, staff and student body observed a period of silence following the reading of a biographical sketch of the former air corps major by Dr. W. R. Hammond, director of the N. J. C. summer school.

Ramsaur, who had enrolled for the current term at the college, had been a student here in 1938-39 and the spring session of 1942. Enlisting in the army air corps in 1942, he was called into active service in August of that year. He was commissioned at the advanced flight school, Columbus, Miss., and left the states in February, 1944, for pilot duty in the army air transport command. Maj. Ramsaur saw service in Normandy, the Rhineland and the Ardennes. At the time of his release from active duty in December, 1946, he was attached to Squadron A 310th A. A. F. His last position was that of an operations officer.

Maj. Ramsaur was awarded the Air Medal with three clusters, the Distinguished Unit Citation, a medal for participation in the East African-Middl Eastern campaign and also a medal for participation in the American campaign.

Funeral services for the 26-year-old veteran were held at the Robinson Funeral Home in Bastrop on Thursday at 3 p. m. Interment was in Riverview Burial Park, Monroe, that afternoon.

Surviving are his mother and brother Clark, a student at Northeast Junior College.

STATE MOTORISTS TOLD MUST DIM HEADLIGHTS

BATON ROUGE, La., June 14.—(AP)—Motorists in Louisiana who fail to dim their headlights when meeting another car at night are going to learn that they have violated a state law, as well as a driving courtesy and safety rule, Hunter Huckabay, director public safety, said today.

Huckabay said that as a result of several recent accidents in Louisiana caused by blinding lights, he had instructed Col. W. D. Atkins, head of the department enforcement division, to place renewed emphasis on the drive to require the proper type, condition and use of vehicle lights.

He said that Act 286 of 1938 requires lights to be dimmed or tilted "at a distance of not less than 200 feet from the approaching vehicle."

Mackenzie's Column

By Francis W. Carpenter
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

After months of saying "no," the Russians finally have a new and positive approach to the atomic problem.

It would not pay to become optimistic about it now. The deadlock on fundamentals still exists. But at least there is a turn in the Russian thinking which has big possibilities.

It is simply this. The Soviet Union admits it might be possible to reach agreement on atomic control on the basis of the United States and Russian plans. Those are the only two big proposals that have been put before the United Nations atomic energy commission since it first met a year ago today.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, gave the first official hint that the Soviet Union saw any possibilities in the United States plan.

In a way, this might eventually be more important than the elaborate scheme for international control which Gromyko laid before the full atomic commission last Wednesday after a big advance build-up.

Experts who have looked twice at Gromyko's proposition of Wednesday realize that it changed exactly nothing in the broad and fundamental disagreement over the veto and national sovereignty on atomic matters. But they did see importance in the fact that Gromyko had enlarged upon his original plan, put before the delegates on June 19, 1946.

After the public pronouncement, Gromyko went before the working committee of the commission in a closed session Thursday and ripped into the United States for saying that the Soviet and American plans must be considered separately.

He said such thinking was "absolutely wrong," that "we should not leave any method aside before we consider it fully exhausted."

Then came this clincher from the Russian:

"Both plans (American and Russian) must be considered simultaneously on their merits."

This caused the Americans some surprise. They had grown accustomed to Gromyko's hands-off attitude toward their plan, which had been written into the commission's first report by a majority of ten of the twelve members. They are waiting now to see which way the wind will blow next.

This is a day for stock-taking on arms and atomics.

One year ago today Bernard M. Baruch, now sitting on the sidelines and keeping officially mum, presented the American plan, which calls for no veto on punishing atomic criminals and for an international atomic development authority with full powers over the atom everywhere.

The anniversary finds Russia still insisting on a convention prohibiting the atomic bomb immediately and a separate convention, to be agreed upon later, setting up the controls. The Russians want the atomic regulations to come within the final authority of the security council, where they have a veto.

Six months ago today the U. N. general assembly approved unanimously a resolution calling for world-wide arms limitation and reduction and a cut in armed forces. Little progress has been made toward that goal.

Four months ago yesterday the security council established the commission for conventional armaments, which is to draw up recommendations for whacking armaments and armed forces. So far, that commission has not even agreed on how to go about the job.

Everyone figures the job will be long. That is the one thing on which they are unanimous.

The medical name for chicken-pox is varicella.

WELFARE BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Discussion Centers Around Services Offered Blind

The Ouachita Parish Welfare Board met Friday evening in the offices of the department of public welfare, 109 Louisville avenue at 7:30 p. m.

The main topic of the meeting was a discussion of the services offered blind persons, according to Lee Hawkins, chairman.

It was brought out blindness is no respecter of age, sex, race, creed or social status. A cross section of blind people of any given area reveals a cross section of the total population. Act 119 of 1942 was established for the purpose of providing assistance to blind persons in adjusting to their environment, including home, school, employment and other activities. It was explained the department of public welfare through its division for the blind and sight conservation was designated to administer these services, which includes a program of home teaching.

The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Madge Simmons, home teacher for the blind in this area. In describing her work she explained that her job is to help people to lead as nearly as possible the same kind of life as they led before loss of vision. Among the things she has helped people re-learn are: How to shave, how to light a cigarette, how to enter a building or a bus, how to find a seat in a bus or in a restaurant, how to locate objects on a desk or table without upsetting other objects, how to ask for and receive help, and how to apply make-up After the initial adjustment is accomplished the person may be taught braille, how to use the talking book machine, and crafts such as making rugs, bedspreads, weaving, and leather work. Miss Simmons stressed that these services are available to legally blind persons regardless of economic status.

The latter part of the meeting was devoted to a general discussion of the problems of blindness and the responsibility of each citizen to become aware of the services available to help these persons.

The members present were: Mrs. C. E. Faulk, Mrs. D. M. Moore, R. L. Ross, Lee Hawkins, chairman; and Aubin E. Fincher, secretary.

LOOK, MISTER, YOU FORCE ME TO FLY YOU UP HERE TO JOIN YOUR PALS. THEN, WHEN THE WELCOMING COMMITTEE GETS A TRIFLE BOISTEROUS, YOU DEVELOP A CASE OF THE GIBBERS.
AND THE PIRATES
GEORGE WUNDER

YOU IDIOT! THOSE ARE MILITARY PLANES SENT TO HUNT FOR ME. YOU MUST LAND AT ONCE, BEFORE THEY SHOOT US DOWN.
THEY ONLY BUZZED US — THAT WAS A WARNING! THEIR LEADER IS GIVING THE SIGNAL FOR 'FOLLOW ME'!

THEN IT'S INDEED FORTUNATE THAT MY FRIENDS ON THE GROUND WERE ALERT TO MY COMING AND HAD A LANDING PLACE PREPARED. HEAD FOR IT, IF YOU PLACE ANY VALUE ON YOUR LIFE.
I'LL HAVE TO MAKE A TRIAL RUN OVER IT, FIRST. I CAN'T RISK SETTING DOWN BLIND.

OBSERVE, FLIGHT LEADER, THAT THE AIRCRAFT THE POLICE COMMANDANT RYAN WISHED US TO FIND, BEHAVES IN A FURTIVE MANNER. IT TURNS AND FLIES CLOSE TO THE GROUND AS IF SEEKING TO EVADE US.

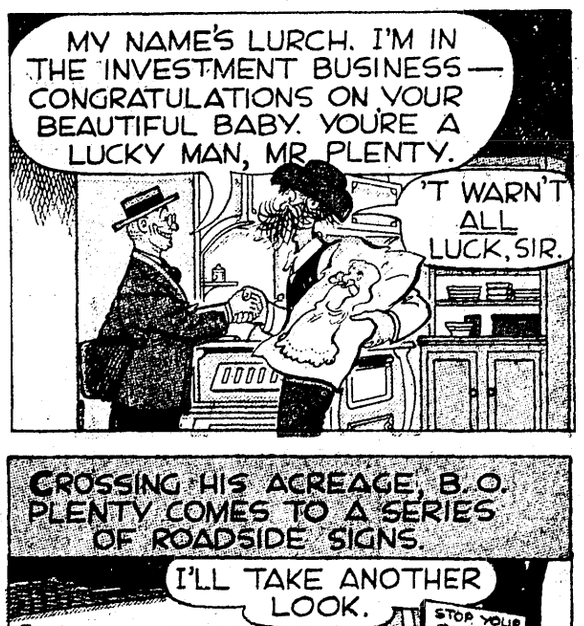
GRAVEL GERTIE'S CONDITION REMAINS GRAVE. SHE HAS BEEN PLACED UNDER AN OXYGEN TENT, BUT HOPE FOR HER LIFE DWINDLES BY THE HOUR.

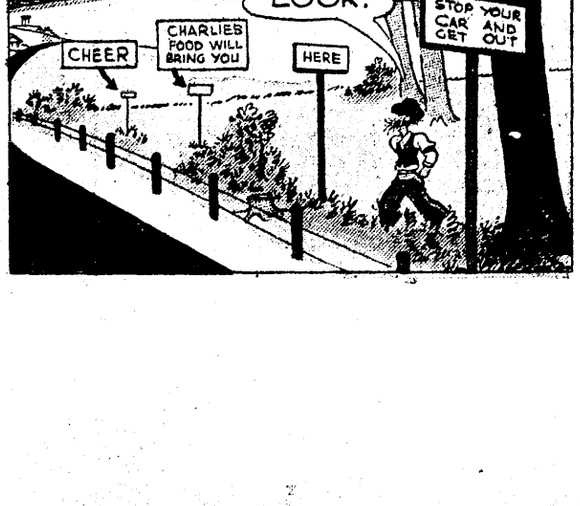
ALL YOUR FRIENDS SENT STUFF! HIGH CHAIRS! CLOTHES! TOYS! ONE FELLER EVEN SENT A BOX OF DOG BISCUITS IN CASE YOU EVER GET A PET PUPPY.



MY NAME'S LURCH. I'M IN THE INVESTMENT BUSINESS — CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR BEAUTIFUL BABY. YOU'RE A LUCKY MAN, MR. PLENTY.
'T WARN'T ALL LUCK, SIR.

HEARD YOU CAME INTO CONSIDERABLE MONEY THROUGH THE SALE OF YOUR BABY'S PICTURE TO "GLANCE." HAVE YOU THOUGHT OF PUTTING THAT MONEY IN A SAFE PLACE?

YOU'RE DAD-DRATTED RIGHT! FURTHERMORE, I CONSIDER THAT A PUSSONAL MATTER. I'LL THANK YOU TO LEAVE MY PROPERTY AT ONCE.
ER—I DIDN'T MEAN—



CROSSING HIS ACREAGE, B. O. PLENTY COMES TO A SERIES OF ROADSIDE SIGNS.
I'LL TAKE ANOTHER LOOK.

PULLING UP THE SIGN BEARING THE WORD "HERE," HE DRAWS UP A SMALL PACKAGE FROM THE HOLE.

WHAT'S THE IDEA OF THE SHOOTING, BOOTH?

PABLO TRYIN' TO SNEAK ABOARD THE BOAT, BOSS! I DON'T KNOW WHETHER I HIT HIM, BUT HE HASN'T COME UP YET!

MY RIVAL FOR YOUR GRANDDAUGHTER'S HAND WAS PLAYING BURGLAR, SENORA MONTEJO! BOOTH FRIGHTENED HIM AWAY!

SO! THEN THIS SHOULD CHANGE CARMELITA'S MIND ABOUT HIM!

EASY, TRAILING CASE LOT JONES, REACHES THE HACIENDA AND IS SEEN BY CARMELITA

SORRY, MISS, BUT I DON'T WANT TO BE ANNOUNCED YET!

EE--

DON'T SCREAM AND I'LL TURN YOU LOOSE! I'M LOOKING FOR SOME BAD HOMBRES AND THAT SHOOTING MAKES ME THINK I'VE FOUND 'EM!

I KNOW THE MEN YOU SEEK! I WILL HELP YOU CATCH THEM, FOR THEY HAVE SHOT POOR PABLO!

ARE THOSE THE MEN?

HMM! I REMEMBER THE TALL ONE! THEY'RE THE ONES I'M AFTER!

I WILL TELL CARMELITA OF PABLO'S DISGRACE AND INSIST ON HER MARRIAGE TO YOU AT ONCE, SENOR JONES!

THEY RETURN! QUICK! YOU MUST HIDE!

THE MAJOR ORDERED 'EM, MRS. HOOPLE, AND PAID FOR 'EM! — HE SAID SOMETHING ABOUT A PICNIC!

YES, MY DEAR! WE'LL ALL PICNIC AT MOOGAN'S GROVE TOMORROW — AT MY EXPENSE — HAR-RUMPH!

WELL THIS IS AN UNEXPECTED PLEASURE!

EGAD, BUSTER! I TRUST YOUR CAR IS IN TIP-TOP SHAPE FOR THE GALA EVENT TOMORROW!

MAJOR HOOPLE

I'M JUST STEPPING OUT TO THE CLUB A MOMENT — SEE THAT YOU'RE ALL IN BED EARLY SO YOU'LL BE FRESH FOR THE OUTING TOMORROW!

I CAN'T WAKE THAT MUMMY — IT WAS NEARLY FOUR WHEN HE GOT IN! WE'LL GO WITHOUT HIM, AND IT SERVES HIM RIGHT!

IT'S STARTING TO SPRINKLE! LET'S RUN FOR THE CAR!

JUST AS I HAD ALL THE LUNCH SPREAD, TOO!

THE TOP WON'T GO UP — AND I'VE GOT A FLAT TIRE!

WE MIGHT HAVE EXPECTED THIS, WITH THAT BIG WALRUS PLANNING IT!

EGAD! EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE INCONSIDERATE TO LEAVE ME, I HOPE THIS DOWNPOUR DOESN'T INCONVENIENCE THEM!

TARZAN

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

THE APE-MAN RUSHED IN TO RESCUE DALLAS AND THE GOLDEN LION FROM HUGE, FLESH-EATING SPIDERS.

A TOUGH SPIDER-CORD SHOT OUT AND ENTWINED HIM. JERKED UPWARD, HE FOUGHT TO FREE HIMSELF.

WITH GROWING DESPERATION, TARZAN SLASHED AT THE RELENTLESS, TIGHTENING WEB.

AND SLOWLY, THE GIGANTIC INSECT CLOSED IN FOR THE KILL.

TARZAN'S ARMS BROKE FREE AT LAST AND, WITH ONE SWEEP OF HIS KNIFE, HE SEVERED A GRASPING CLAW.

THE SPIDER'S DEADLY ADVANCE ON TARZAN STOPPED MOMENTARILY, TARZAN CUT HIS WAY OUT OF THE WEB AND LEAPED TOWARD THE BLAZING CAMPFIRE.

Copr. 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved. Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

EVERY MOVEMENT CO-ORDINATED, THE APE-MAN SNATCHED A BLAZING BRAND FROM THE FIRE AND TURNED BACK TO ATTACK.

THE WEB-STRANDS HISSED AND SNAPPED TO THE FLAME, AND QUICKLY, THE LOATHESOME MONSTERS RETREATED INTO THE JUNGLE.

JIM HEARS SOMEONE PASSING HIS CELL. "LOTUS! HELP ME--THEY'RE TRYING TO FRAME ME!"

Copr. 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

A GUARD SNEERS, "LOTUS BUSY, NO TALK. MAHARAJA SENT FOR HER, TO DANCE WHILE HIM DYING."

LATER, RAJA SIRDAR APPEARS: "MY UNCLE IS DEAD---BY YOUR GUN. WE FOUND GEMS IN YOUR ROOM, AND BABU GUMCHEE'S. I SENTENCE YOU TO DIE!"

"YOU AND THE BABU FRAMED ME! I DEMAND A TRIAL!" JIM SHOUTS. RAJA SIRDAR SMILES SLIGHTLY: "YOU'VE HAD IT....BIND HIM AND THROW HIM TO THE CROCODILES!"

FLASH GORDON

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

AS SOON AS FLASH GETS HIMSELF LOCKED IN THE CELL NEXT TO THE GIRL SPY, SULTRA, HE STARTS TUNNELING THROUGH THE WALL BETWEEN THE CELLS WITH A MINIRAY GUN.

"PSST, YOU! WHY ARE YOU WASTING TIME DIGGING A HOLE INTO MY CELL?" SULTRA DEMANDS. FLASH WARNS, "QUIET, GIRL, I HAVE A PLAN THAT WILL FREE US BOTH!"

"WHAT ARE YOU UP TO? WHAT IS YOUR PLAN?" ASKS SULTRA. "HURRY!" FLASH URGES. "CLIMB THROUGH THE HOLE AND HIDE IN MY CELL! --THEY'LL THINK YOU'VE ESCAPED--"

FLASH REPLACES THE STONE, AS SULTRA HIDES IN HIS BUNK. A GUARD FINDS SHE'S GONE: "WHAT HAPPENED NEXT DOOR?" FLASH SNEERS, "SHE OPENED HER CELL AND BEAT IT!"

THE GUARD LEAVES SULTRA'S DOOR OPEN--AS FLASH HAS SECRETLY ARRANGED. "COME ON, GIRL, NOW'S OUR CHANCE TO ESCAPE! HE SAYS -- AND SULTRA WHISPERS, "YOU'RE PRETTY SMART, AFTER ALL."

AT THE OUTER GATE, FLASH SLUGS A GUARD AND PRETENDS TO MINIRAY HIM TO DEATH TO IMPRESS SULTRA. "COME ON, I'VE GOT HIS KEYS," HE WHISPERS, AND SULTRA EAGERLY FOLLOWS FLASH'S LEAD.
